YOUR Junior 3 year will finish soon. Do you want to say something about your junior school life? What are the rewards (收获) of the three years? Teenagers have their stories to share.

Lin Yijian, 14, Xiamen, Fujian

I got through a hard time in Junior 2 when my grades suddenly dropped a lot. I faced great pressure. In the following summer vacation, I worked really hard by studying from 7:30 am to 9:30 pm every day. It was crazy, but when I got back to the top of exams, I felt everything was worthwhile (值得的).

Zhang Wanying, 15, Dalian, Liaoning

In 2009 I had a trip to the US with some students and teachers. When we arrived there, the other students and I didn't want to eat the local food. The teachers were worried and tried to make us eat. When we finally finished the meal, the guide scolded (责备) us, saying that the world now sees how spoiled Chinese kids are. I felt really sorry.

Luo Shu'er, 14, Hangzhou, Zhejiang

I lived in a dorm (寝室) during junior school. It was a great challenge since I had never left my parents before that. I had to take care of everything myself. I learned to tidy my bed and get along with roommates. I also learned to make a schedule to arrange (安排) my time. I've done a good job and I feel proud.

Yin Donghui, 13, Beijing

I won first place in the rope skipping (跳绳) competition at our school's sports meeting in my first year in junior school. The sports meeting is a big event at our school. To prepare for it I practiced hard and skipped rope 500 times every day. Finally I skipped over 210 times in one minute. You don't know how excited I was then!

“TODAY is a dream come true. I have always wanted to be a Grand Slam (大满贯) champion.” These are the words of Chinese tennis player Li Na after she became the first Asian woman to win a Grand Slam final in the French Open on June 4. “People were saying I’m getting old. So this is a great success for such an old woman,” the 29-year-old joked. This is the way that Li usually fights doubts (质疑) – by being humorous and sharp (尖锐的). “China’s NO. One sister” is never a pushover (软弱的人). She has a tattoo (纹身). She has dyed (染色) her hair many different colors. And, at the 2008 Beijing Olympics, she told her fans to “shut up” when they got too noisy in their support. Li started to play tennis at the age of 6. She once recalled: “As a child I felt sad because every day I had to wake up early to practice. After school, I had to practice more. I didn’t have time to play.” Luckily, the tough (坚强的) girl didn’t give up, thus making history for Chinese tennis time after time. Now the new champion is already thinking about winning another Grand Slam title. Her next stop is Wimbledon – the European grass court championship that starts later this month. “When you have one achievement, naturally you will think about another,” she says, not hiding her ambition (雄心). “Chinese people are so lacking (缺乏) in confidence on the tennis court. If there is a person like me who can prove (证明) we can do it, the other young players in China will feel the same.”

55. What's Li Na's way to deal with others' doubts?

- A. By being friendly and smiling to others.
B. By being humorous and sharp.
C. By crying for help from her family and friends.
D. By saying nothing.

56. From the passage we can see Li Na _____.
A. is out of style B. she didn't have to be hardworking
C. lacks confidence D. is strong-minded and ambitious
57. From the underlined sentences said by Li Na, we can see _____.
A. Li Na sets a good example for other Chinese tennis players
B. Li Na's success in tennis court has no influence at all on Chinese tennis players.
C. Chinese tennis player always have enough confidence.
D. Chinese players should hide their ambition.
58. Why was Li Na not very happy as a small child?
A. She didn't play tennis well enough.
B. She didn't have much fun with other kids.
C. She didn't like playing tennis.
D. The tennis teacher didn't like her.

It's reported that a company called Micro CHIPS has developed a useful device(装置). The device is put under the skin and can supply(提供) a drug directly into the patient's body. People give the name "microchips" to it. Microchips bring good news to patients with long-term(长期的) illnesses, for example, osteoporosis(骨质疏松症). People who have Osteoporosis have to get daily injections(注射) of medicine. One type of treatment needs injections for two years. Many patients stop taking medicine because of the pain and stress of the infections. However, microchips can deal with it. Doctors will program the device before putting it under the skin, and the device has the ability to release(释放) a dose(剂量) at a given time, every single day. One microchip can hold a full year's worth of medicine. Some day microchips may free(使...摆脱) people from having to remember to take their medicine, or get injections. The device may also be useful in treating other long-term diseases, including heart disease, cancer and even AIDS.
