Clever Judge. Many years ago there lived a poor young boy in a small village. He was about ten years old. Every afternoon, he walked around the village selling his cooking oil. He carried the oil in a small wooden basin. One afternoon, after he sold all of his oil, he felt very tired. He thought that he would take a rest. He left his wooden basin under a tree, put the money in it and fell asleep. About two hours later, he woke up. He looked into the basin and found that his money was gone. He went at once to see a woman judge, The judge listened to the boy's story very carefully. She thought for a while, and then said to the men in her office, "Go and get all the people in the village here."

When all the villagers came, she asked that everyone should put a coin into the water in a big basin. About half of the people had put their coins in before a young man came up. He also put his coin into the water. "Wait a minute," the judge said. "You took away the boy's money, didn't you?" The young man's face turned red. "Ye--- ye --- yes." he said, "How did you know that?" The judge said, "You see, after you had put your coin into the water, some oil came up to the top. Your money must have been taken from the oil basin."

Marriage ceremonies around the world are very different. Some are short and simple, others are long and complicated. In some cases the bride wears red clothes, in others she may be tattooed. In the islands of New Guinea, north of Australia, girls who want to be beautiful brides are tattooed from head to foot. This takes several years. First, the hands are tattooed, and finally, the face. The marriage ceremony in New Guinea is unusual, too.

The wedding ceremony takes place in a room in the bride's house. First, the bride and bridegroom stand back to back in the middle of the room. The guests and friends stand around them, the men on one side the women on the other. Next, an old man joins their right hands together. He spits a mouthful of water over them. He says, "May no enemy kill you, may no bad spirit bring you sickness." After that, somebody brings some sago, a kind of thick, white soup. After the new husband and wife eat some, the guests have some. Then the newlyweds sit up for four nights. During this time their friends watch them and do not let them fall asleep. They do this to have a long and rich life. Finally, everybody leaves them to meet alone on the night of the fifth day.

In Britain you are allowed to drive a car when you are seventeen. You have to get a special two-year driving license before you can start. When you are learning, someone with a full license always has to be in the car with you because you aren't allowed to drive the car on the road alone. You don't have to go to a driving school ---- a friend can teach you. The person with you isn't allowed to take the money for the lesson unless he's got a teacher's license.

Before you are allowed to have a full license, you have to take a driving test. You can take a test in your own car, but it has to be fit for the road. In the test you have to drive round for about half an hour and then answer a few questions. If you don't pass the test, you are allowed to take it again a few weeks later if you want to. In 1970 a woman passed her fortieth test after 212 driving lessons. When you've passed your test, you don't have to take it again, and you are allowed to go on driving as long as you like. Britain's oldest driver was a man who drove in 1974 at the age of 100.

Before 1904 everyone was allowed to drive, even children. Then from 1904 car drivers had to have a license. But they didn't have to take a test until 1935. On the early days of car driving, before 1878, cars weren't allowed to go faster than four miles an hour, and someone had to lead the car with a red flag.

- () 16. Which of the following is not necessary(必要的) for a young man who wants to drive a car alone?
