A

Even though I just had lunch not long ago, I was felling hungry again. I went for something to eat. That was when I discovered the pudding in the fridge. It was made from milk, sugar, eggs and fruits, and it looked so yummy. I noticed that there was only one left.

I was putting the pudding on a plate when my brother came into the kitchen. He found the pudding and asked for it. "It's mine! I was the only one who found it!" I shouted. "You are my elder brother, you should give it to me!" said he. Then he started pulling the plate towards himself and I did the same.

Suddenly, the plate moved to one side and the pudding slipped (滑动) out of the plate. It landed on the floor and turned into a yellow mess. My brother and I both looked at each other, feeling amazed and disappointed at the same time. It was such a waste!

To my surprise, Ollie, our pet dog, walked over to the mess on the floor. It began to lap up the pudding happily. Within minutes, the mess on the floor was gone. Ollie licked (舔) its lips when it was done.

After watching Ollie finishing the whole pudding by itself, we realized how foolish we had been. If both of us had shared the pudding, we would both have got to eat half of it. It was because of our greed (贪婪) that we ended up with nothing. That day, my brother and I learnt a good lesson.

46. The writer discovered a pudding in the _____.

- A. plate B. fridge C. cup D. cupboard

47. The writer's brother thought he should get the pudding because _____.

- A. he found it by himself B. he made it by himself
C. He studied harder than the writer D. he was younger than the writer.
48. The underlined part “lap up” in Paragraph 4 is the closest in meaning to _____.
A. share B. move C. eat D. pull
49. Which of the following is right about the pudding?
A. It was made from only eggs and fruits. B. It didn’t look yummy.
C. The writer put it in a bowl. D. it was eaten by the writer’s pet dog.
50. What lesson can we learn from the passage?
A. We should give our food to our brother. B. We should share with others.
C. We shouldn’t keep a pet dog. D. We shouldn’t eat puddings after lunch.

C

We often face the following situations in our daily life:

- ⊗ The woman next door plays her piano after 12 o’clock at night.
- ⊗ The family across the street never cleans up their yard. The rubbish blows into your yard.
- ⊗ The man next door always parks his car in front of your drive.

Have things like this ever happened to you? If so, you may ask yourself, “Who are these people? Why are they doing these things to me?”

These days, many people don’t know their neighbors. Sometimes we share a friendly smile or say hello, but lots of people don’t even know their neighbor’s names! When you don’t know someone, it’s easy to be angry when something has happened that you think is unfair. You think, “Maybe they like to make me angry,” or “Maybe they do it on purpose.” Believe it or not, your neighbors probably don’t mean to irritate (激怒) you. Often, they don’t even know that they’re making you feel angry. So before you take unusual steps to deal with the problem, you should discuss it with them first.

When you move towards your neighbors, you should talk to them in a friendly manner (=way). Praise their children to make them feel good. Then explain the situation. And if you can think of a simple way to solve the problem, suggest (=advise) it.

If talking doesn’t work, ask another person to help. This person can listen to both sides of the story and help you and your neighbors solve the situation.

Finally, sometimes it’s a good idea to avoid the problem. Depending on the problem, it might be best to just stay out of your neighbor’s way.

56. What’s the writer’s purpose of writing paragraphs 1&2?
A. To ask some questions. B. To introduce the subjects.
C. To list some situations. D. To tell some stories.
57. You should talk about the problem with your neighbors first because _____.
A. they often say hello or smile to you

- B. you do not know what they are called
- C. they probably don't plan to make you unhappy
- D. they will take unusual steps to solve the problem
58. When talking with your neighbors, you can make them have a good feeling by ____.
- A. praising their children B. explaining the problem
- C. shaking hands with them D. making friends with them
59. The best way to solve the problem sometimes is to ____.
- A. ask another person for help B. stay out of your neighbor's way.
- C. tell the story to your friend D. let your neighbor get out of the way
60. What does the passage mainly talk about?
- A. Ways to deal with neighbors. B. Problems caused by neighbors.
- C. Situations we may face every day. D. Reasons why we become angry at neighbors.
