When I was a boy, I was crazy about reading. I would read every word on everything I saw. Most of the time when other kids were playing outside, I enjoyed reading books alone at home. Even now, that reading 36 has been with me. I always have at least one book being read. And I’m talking about real books, books made 37 paper, books that you can hold in your hand to read at the table or on the subway.

But the number of people reading books 38. A recent survey tells us that on average (平均), each American only reads three books a year 39 in China, about half of the people say they didn’t read a book last year! So what’s stopping people from reading?

The answer is the changes that 40 brings to our life. Why read a book when you can watch a movie or a TV play on your smart phones or iPads? For young people, books may not be as 41 as online games.

But you can still fall in love with books easily. We all have this thing called imagination. 42 more powerful than any computer. In fact, any online game was 43 in words as a story by its writer at first. It’s all about his or her imagination.

So we need to read— if we do not read, it will be hard for us to improve our ability to think 44, to have an imagination. Reading is a process in which we need to compare and connect other things we read and saw in the past. If you do not read, this will 45 your study as well as your social life in the future.

So why not follow me to enjoy reading from now on?

He made a hole and pointed it up the hill so the wind couldn't come into it. Outside his hole, the temperature that night fell to a dangerous -15°C, but inside it, Dale was safe from the cold.

But he had to get down the mountain. The TV programs always said, "If you are lost, you should find someone else's tracks in the snow and follow them." "I wanted to live my life," Dale remembers later. "So I got up and I found some ski tracks and I followed them." He walked and walked and finally he saw lights. Nine hours after he lost his ski, he found a team of workers who came to save him. He was safe!

His mum was very happy when she heard the news. Amazingly, Dale didn't even have to go to hospital. He got through the terrible experience without any injuries.

So, next time when someone says that watching TV is a waste of time, think of Dale. Sometimes TV can save your life!

Nowadays, it has grown into a habit for many people to put every thought online when anything unhappy happens. However, it is important for people not to express every little thought that comes in their heads. Here are some interesting explanations.

The problem with expressing our every thought and feeling is that they can often change quickly. I may be angry with someone at this time, but that feeling will be gone by the next day. For example, when I finally drove home last night, I happened to find my neighbor had taken my parking place by mistake. I was quite mad then, so I let everyone know it by posting it on Wechat (微信). But today, that feeling is completely gone. I am not angry at all.

Too many things take place in one day, so not every problem needs to be paid much attention to. What will happen if we still keep spreading terrible feelings online, even if the problem is not that important? Only hatred (憎恨) will grow in our relationships, like a terrible disease. Actually, it's all right to let go of some problems.

Moreover, communicating with words doesn't always work. For example, I have three children. Trying to correct their habits by speaking to them directly is almost useless. Instead, my husband and I try to lead by example. Sometimes they learn from it, and sometimes they don't. But in many situations, setting a good example works much better than simply talking.

What can people do if they have disagreement when getting along with others? There are always two choices: they can either argue, or they can just walk away. Arguing is often a waste of time while walking away protects you from saying something that you may later regret (后悔). Our goal is to use every one of our words to cheer others up. So always think carefully before speaking. This way, the world will be a more peaceful place.

57. It's important not to spread every thought online because _____.

- A. it changes fast
- B. every thought is very meaningful
- C. speaking is more useful
- D. we are not free to say what we like

58. The writer uses her experience with her children to show that _____.

- A. it takes time to communicate with others
 B. correcting children's habit by speaking is almost useless
 C. words don't always work in communication
 D. setting good examples is the best way to teach children
59. From the last paragraph, we can infer (推断) that _____.
 A. we should argue with people who disagree with us
 B. we should pay attention to our words
 C. people will argue or walk away when they have disagreement
 D. we are free to express ourselves and never regret
60. If we put the passage into three parts, which of the following is the best?
 (①= Para.(自然段) 1 ②=Para. 2 ③=Para. 3 ④=Para. 4 ⑤=Para. 5)
 A. ①; ②; ③④⑤ B. ①; ②③④; ⑤ C. ①; ②③; ④⑤ D. ①②; ③④; ⑤

It was Sunday again. Paula and Emily disliked Sundays. That was one of the many things the twins had in common. They shared the same clothes and tied their hair in the same way. In fact, it was sometimes hard for their teachers and classmates to tell the differences between them.

Unlike their classmates, they had to get up early at seven every Sunday to prepare for their lessons. Paula had to attend the art class and Emily had to attend her dancing class. Both of them had learned their own classes for three years. "How I wish I could do something different today!" said the twins with one voice. All at once, a wonderful plan came to Paula and Emily at the same time. After giving each other a description (描述) of their own teachers and classmates, Paula put on Emily's dancing dress while Emily put Paula's things for painting into her bag. Then they left for their classes.

When the art class started, Emily felt lost. Unlike Paula, Emily was poor at drawing. When the art class finally ended, Emily didn't dare to hand in her work.

Meanwhile, Paula was struggling (挣扎) in the dancing class as well. As she had no idea about the dance steps, she had to follow her classmates blindly. As a result, she kept walking into them. Their dancing teacher became a little bit angry with her, "Emily, you should remember the steps. You can't depend on copying what others are doing."

When Emily and Paula got home, they were tired out. They decided that they would never try to be someone else they were not. It seemed that "the grass was not always greener on the other side of the fence (篱笆)".
