When the bell rings, every student takes out an iPad. That's what happens every day at my school in the US. We use iPads in class. I felt surprised and excited when I got an iPad on the first day I arrived at the school. But it was not free. I paid about $100 to use it for three years.

When we have classes, we enter a special learning system (系统) and download (下载) learning things with our iPads. It makes the classes interesting. We also do our homework with iPads. If the homework is made up of multiple choices (选择题), we can know our grades right after we hand in our homework online. If it's articles, teachers grade them online, without needing to look through so many papers.

However, there are still some bad points about learning with iPads. Some of my classmates play games in class.

I think the key to using iPads well is to have good self-control (自制力). Don't you think so?

51. On the first day of school in the US, the writer _____.
 A. got a free iPad from her teacher B. found many students playing games on iPads
 C. got an iPad for three years D. used one iPad with her deskmate in class
52. According to the passage, we learn that _____.
 A. students can download everything freely B. there is a special learning system on every iPad
 C. students don't like to use iPads in class D. students mainly use iPads to watch movies
53. The underlined word "grades" means _____ in Chinese.
 A. 年级 B. 质量 C. 品位 D. 成绩
54. What does the writer think of using iPads in school? _____.
 A. Students have more chances to copy homework online.
 B. It may take a lot of time for teachers to grade their homework.
 C. Most of the students only use iPads to play games.
 D. The key to using iPads is to have good self-control.

55. From the passage, we know that _____.

- A. most students like playing games with iPads in class
- B. iPads can make the classes interesting and efficient (有效率的).
- C. the writer felt very surprised to get a free iPad on the first school day
- D. the students never use the iPads to do their homework.

(C)

You might love to watch animals in zoos, movies or some shows. But do the animals really want to act for people? Do they miss their families and homes?

Before you watch animals in zoos, movies or shows, you have to ask yourself this question: do you believe it's right to capture (捕获) animals away from their families? If you believe it's wrong, you might want to think twice before buying your ticket to go to the zoos, movies or shows.

If you don't believe that animal actors and animals in zoos are unhappy, you should listen to the story of Ric O' Barry. In the 1980s, he was a dolphin trainer (海豚驯养师) for the TV show Flipper. After the show became famous across the world, many people began to capture dolphins. After working with the dolphins every day, Ric found the dolphins were unhappy. He said that one of the dolphin actors that played in Flipper killed itself. Ric gave up his job as a dolphin trainer. Now he works to fight against capturing dolphins.

However, some movies do a great job on filming (拍摄电影) animals in their natural habitat (自然栖息地). So if you're a real animal lover, the best way for you to watch and learn about animals is to watch them.

56. Before you go to watch the animals in zoos, movies or shows, what question should you ask yourself?

- A. Am I a real animal lover?
- B. Where do the animals come from?
- C. Is it right to capture animals away from their families?
- D. What's the best way to watch and learn about animals?

57. What was Ric's job in the 1980s?

- A. An actor.
- B. A reporter.
- C. A movie maker.
- D. A dolphin trainer.

58. Why did one dolphin actor in Flipper kill itself?

- A. Because Ric left it.
- B. Because it was unhappy.
- C. Because it was too tired.
- D. Because Ric didn't like it.

59. In the last paragraph, the underlined word "them" refers to (指的是) _____.

- A. movies that show animals in their natural habitat.
- B. animals that act in movies and TV shows.
- C. animals that live in their natural habitat.
- D. TV shows that have animal actors.

60. Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. Ric is very famous across the world.
- B. Flipper is a TV show about animals in zoos.
- C. It's wrong for people to watch movies or shows about animals.
- D. The writer thinks animals should live in their natural habitat.
