Five Things to Do Before You Are 18

Are you bored with your daily routine? Here are some things you should try before you are 18, because after that it's too late.

Write your family tree

When you are young, get to know all the older people in your family and find out as much as you can about when they were young. Draw a family tree and make notes about each person so that you won't forget.

Learn to swim

Seriously, this is so important that it could save your life. If you can't swim well, you won't be able to do water sports like waterskiing, surfing and diving. Even taking a boat trip will be dangerous for you. Make sure you do it.

Try at least one kind of team sport

Being a good team player is an important skill in life. You can't just think of yourself, but have to work well with other people. Other advantages of team sports like basketball, football and baseball are that they keep you fit and healthy, and they are also great fun. Teams usually have a good social life too—you'll go to lots of parties and make many friends.

Collect something

One of the best hobbies for under-18s is collecting things. You could collect rare Chinese stamps, or you could collect things that make you remember what you have done, like cinema tickets for films you have seen or emails from friends. The best way to collect is to have a special album to put your collection in and to write what each thing means to you. That way you won't forget.

Camp out in the garden

If you don't have your own garden, find a friend who has one! You will need: two or three friends, a small tent, sleeping bags and warm blankets. Take a lot of food and drink with you into the tent and play games until it gets dark. When it gets dark, tell ghost stories, and at midnight, eat all your sweets. You will need a torch or else you won't be able to see all your sweets, and it might get too scary.

One morning, a blind boy sat on the steps of a building with a hat by his feet. He held a sign which said, "I am blind. Please help me." There were only a few coins in the hat. A man was walking by. He took out a few coins from his pocket and dropped them into the hat. He then took the sign, turned it around, and wrote some words on it. He put the sign back so that everyone who walked by could see the new words. Soon the hat began to fill up. A lot more people were giving money to the blind boy. That afternoon the man who had changed the sign came to see how things were. The boy recognized his footsteps and asked, "Are you the one who changed my sign in the morning? What did you write?"

The man said, "I only wrote the truth. I said what you said, but in a different way."

What he had written was, "Today is a beautiful day, but I can not see it."

Do you think the first sign and the second sign were saying the same thing? Of course both signs told people the boy was blind. But the first sign simply told people to help by putting some money in the hat. The second sign told people that they were able to enjoy the beauty of the day, but the boy could not enjoy it because he was blind.

The first sign simply said the boy was blind, while the second sign told people they were so lucky that they were not blind. There are at least two lessons we can learn from this simple story. The first is: Treasure what you have. Someone else has less. Try your best to help those who need your help. The second is: Be creative. Think differently. There is always a better way.

- A. He is blind. Please help him. B. Today is a beautiful day, but I cannot see it.
- C. We are so lucky that we are not blind D. Treasure what we have.

A. knew B. made C. took D. moved

A. The hat began to fill up after the man wrote some words on the sign.
B. The man took away the few coins from the hat.
C. The boy pretended to be blind, for he didn't want to go to school.

Chinese athlete Liu Xiang, winner of gold medal in the men's 110m hurdles at the Athens Olympics, published his book, I'm Liu Xiang, recently in his hometown of Shanghai.

It seems that many people can't help comparing Liu Xiang with another Shanghai native, basketball giant(巨星) Yao Ming, who also recently published his book, A life in Two Worlds. Manager Dai, the editor of the book I'm Liu Xiang, explained the differences between the two books as he saw them. Firstly, Yao's book was written mainly for Americans, while Liu's readers will be mainly Chinese. Secondly, A Life in Two Worlds was written in third person singular (单数) by an American writer who recorded Yao Ming's stories, I'm Liu Xiang was written in the first person and included many articles from his diaries. Lastly, according to Dai, Yao enjoyed the advantage of being born in a sporty, rich family, unlike Liu, who came from a working class family and therefore had to go through greater hardship(艰难) before becoming a world-known athlete.
