Making friends is a skill. Like most skills, it improves with practice. If you want to meet people and make friends, you must take some actions. You must first go where there are people. You won't make friends staying home 41.

Joining a club or a group, talking with those who like the same things as you do is much 42. Or join someone in some activities.

Many people are nervous when they are talking to new people. After all, meeting strangers means facing the unknown. And it's human nature to feel a bit uncomfortable about unknown. Most of our fears about dealing with new people comes from doubt about 43. We imagine other people are judging(评判) us, finding us too tall or too short, too this or too that. But don't forget that they must be feeling the same way. Try to accept yourself as you are, and try to put the other person at ease(自在). You'll both feel more comfortable.

Try to act with self-confidence(自信) 44 you don't feel that way. Walk with your back straight, look directly at other people and smile.

If you see someone you'd like to speak to, say something. Don't wait for 45 to start a conversation.

Just meeting someone new does not mean that you will make friends with that person—friendship is "give and take". It takes time and effort to develop.
