B. Choose the best words and complete the passage(选择恰当的选项完成短文)(12 分)

Humans are social animals and in social life, keeping polite and honest helps develop relationship and create good order.

First, be polite and you'll be popular everywhere.

- Always say more than yes or no. Never just say OK. Saying more than yes or no turns a question into a 75. It also shows that you are interested while you are 76 your great English skill. Remember, practice makes perfect, so try to talk more!
- Usually say MAYBE when you are not 77. If you know you can't do, please just say no. Saying maybe, and then not doing is rude.

Example:

Mary: Can you bring the water for dinner?

Jack: Maybe, I will have to see.

Mary: That's not good, I need a 'yes' or a 'no'.

Jack: Then I had better say no, so you can find someone else to do it.

Mary: No problem, thanks a lot for your honesty.

Second, be honest and you'll be trusted and welcomed.

- Honesty is a 78 in the west. Always tell the truth. Never cheat in tests! It is a crime in the USA to cheat in a university test. Not only will cheaters 79 the test, they will be kicked out of the class and maybe the school. Schools won't give back cheaters' educational expenses, so they will lose money. Never cheat.

If you give your friend the answers to a test, like the TOEFL, or a classroom test, even a quiz, you are still cheating. Don't help your friend cheat. If you do so, you will 80 get in hot water, you will get kicked out of university and you will lose your money, too.

- |                   |             |                |                    |
|-------------------|-------------|----------------|--------------------|
| 75. A)answer      | B)debate    | C)conversation | D) discussion      |
| 76. A)showing off | B)giving up | C)dealing with | D) learning from   |
| 77. A)comfortable | B)calm      | C)correct      | D)certain          |
| 78. A)tiny matter | B)big deal  | C)useful sign  | D)helpless quality |
| 79. A)pass        | B)control   | C) fail        | D)take             |
| 80. A) daily      | B) finally  | C) gently      | D)quietly          |

C. Fill in the blanks with proper words (在短文的空格内填入适当的词,使其内容通顺。每空格限填一词,首字母已给)(14 分)

One day I was driven by a rain-storm to take shelter in a little hut by the road-side, which was used by a shoe-maker as his workshop to fix shoes. The man and his son were busy with their work; and after saying, "Good day," we began to talk together.

Before I had been with them long, the old man sent his son out to get something that he needed for his repair. His son was only one kilometre away, but it was too long for the h 81 shoe-maker to be free. He at last took up a piece of leather and began to work on it, saying, "You know, sir, it will never do to waste time."

As soon as the rain was over, I went on my way home, thinking over what I had heard, "It will never do to waste time." Some people are always lazy, others are lazy only now and then. I was one of the second ones. I couldn't f 82 my attention all the time. So the old man's words came home with me and I began to feel how w 83 it was to waste so much of my life in laziness.

I had often heard and read that laziness was great h 84; but now I begin to see that it causes far more disadvantages than people are aware of. They don't know the wasted time never goes back.

When a man is busy, he is said to be "occupied." What does that mean? It means that a man at work is like a house with people living in it. When our minds are full of our work, there is no s 85 for anything else. Laziness, on the other hand, is emptiness; and when the mind is empty, then the doors are thrown open, and bad thoughts come in to influence your pure heart. When it once gets hold of a man, the habit of laziness isn't e__86__ got rid of.

I have made up my mind to follow the shoe-maker's rule for the rest of my life. Although it was very hard at first, I stick to it because I learn to r__87__ myself not to waste time. Above all, I decide that my mind should never be empty.

D. Answer the questions(根据以下内容回答问题)(12 分)

Many young people love western festivals not because of their cultural meaning, but because of life fun. They don't think it important to know the cultural meaning about western festivals. Actually, we don't just need to remember their names, but we should have an understanding of their culture and history. Western festivals are popular in China because of the differences between western festivals and Chinese ones.

Chinese festivals and western festivals were born for different reasons. Chinese festivals mainly came from celebrations, worship and other activities. However, most western festivals are linked with religions(宗教). Also the ways that western people and Chinese people celebrate festivals aren't similar. Let's take Christmas and the Spring Festival as an example. At Christmas, people prepare Christmas cards, Christmas trees and hold Christmas evenings. Traditionally, Chinese people celebrate the Spring Festival based on blood relationship in the forms of watching television and paying New Year's visits. In addition, western festivals deliver quite different values from Chinese ones. For example, the Valentine's Day, which falls on February 14th, adds fresh mind to Chinese. The festival spreads seeds in every corner of China and encourages people to look for true love which belongs to themselves. Ancient Chinese people don't dare to think of that.

Whether you like western festivals or not, you can't ignore the effect western festivals they have brought to us. We are paying more attention to thanks-giving and emotions instead of food and money. They have made great contributions to enrich our culture.

88. Many young people love western festivals because of life fun, don't they?

89. Why are western festivals popular in China?

90. How do western people usually celebrate Christmas according to the article?
