We've seen 3D films, 3D TVs and so on. They are so interesting that young people like to watch them very much. Have you ever read about 3D newspapers? That was what the Belgian(比利时的) newspaper, La Demiere Heure, tried to do for its readers. This was Europe's first 3D newspaper.

It took the team two months to make the 3D newspaper. The team printed 115, 000 copies of the special edition of La Demiere Heure. It was more than the usual number of the printed copies.

Each of these newspapers came with a pair of free 3D glasses. All the photos and ads in the newspaper were in 3D and the text was the same as usual. Readers could get the best result by holding the paper 50 cms away from the eyes. In fact, if people don't wear the 3D glasses, the newspaper will be terrible to read because the imagines (图像) are not clear.

Many readers tried to buy this kind of newspaper. In fact, some of them bought it just for fun. The publishes (出版商) had no plans to continue it because it cost too much.
