Years ago, if a teenager had some problems in his life, he might write about them in his diary (日记). Now a teenager might surf the Internet and write about his problems in his blog (博客). Miss Li is having a discussion with her students about writing blogs.

①A blog is much more public (公开的) than a diary. My daughter writes about things like getting up early for swimming practice and not studying enough for her math exam in her blog. When I was her age, I wrote the same things, but only in my diary. After I finished writing, I would put my diary in a secret (秘密的) place because I was worried that someone else might read it.

②If I have worries and write “Nobody cares about me” in my diary, no one will know about it. However, if I write the same words in my blog, my friends will quickly reply to me. And they tell me how much they like me. A blog helps people keep in contact (联系) with their friends.

③The biggest problem of the blog is that anyone can read what you write. If I am angry with a friend during school and write something bad about him in my diary, he will never know. However, if I write something bad about my friend, 他会读我的博客并且很伤心。

④Problems and worries are normal in life. Talking to someone helps a lot. If we don't want to talk to anyone else face to face, it will be really a good way to communicate (交流) with others. But we must be careful enough to write blogs.

51. Which do you think is Miss Li's opinion, ①, ②, ③ or ④?

52. Please translate (翻译) the underlined sentences into Chinese.

53. Please translate the underlined sentence into English.
