Many teenagers want to look cool. But not everyone can afford to have a lot of cool clothes. Chloe Murray, an eighth-grader at Jefferson Middle School in the US, had an idea to solve this problem. She opened a charitable clothes closet (慈善衣橱).

Her school agreed with the good idea, too. The school let her use a room for the project. Chloe's classmates joined her as well. Last month, the charitable clothes closet, called Chloe's Closet, opened. It's filled with trendy clothes for girls and boys to help students look their best.

"Confidence is a big thing in middle school, especially when it comes to clothing," Chloe told the Chicago Tribune, a daily newspaper in Chicago, US.

But where are the clothes from? Many people from the school's community and neighboring schools gave away used clothes which are still new. The clothes closet is only open after school on school days. Students can "buy" these clothes by getting "money". They can get "money" when they hand in their schoolwork on time or make corrections on homework. Since it opened, they have "sold" about 100 things to students.

56. Who is Chloe Murray?

- A. A clothes designer.      B. A school student.      C. A fashion model.      D. A clothes seller.

六、读写综合。(本大题分为A、B两部分,共20分)

A. 回答问题 (本大题有5小题,每小题1分,共5分)

In the past ten years, the use of social media has grown in a way that no one could have guessed.

A main feature of social media is its volatility(易变). Trends(流行) come and go, disappearing almost as quickly as they appear. So, what were the main social media trends of 2018?

Short video apps, such as Tik Tok and Douyin, took the world by storm. The Telegraph reported that Tik Tok was the 8th on Apple's App Store in April. And Douyin had more than 300 million active users in June in China, CNBC said.

The sense of community that users of short video apps get is another main feature. Liza Koshy, a user of the US app Musical.ly who has over 2 million followers, said that she was very excited when anyone said that her video had "encouraged" them. "It's really cool... because I think as social creators that's what we all are," she added.

Live streaming(直播) is a feature of our social media life that now seems as natural as sunrise. It's a pretty good idea — you can watch anyone, anywhere, live.

China has taken live streaming to a whole new level. More than 100 million Chinese people monthly watch a live streaming video. Forbes thought that a number of reasons had led to the popularity of live streams. One of the most important reasons is that people don't have to know their real names.

Although we use social media all the time, that doesn't mean that we understand the influence it is having on us. We should pay attention to both the time we spend on it and its influence on our minds.

76. What were the main social media trends of 2018? _____

77. Where did Douyin has more than 300 million active users in June? _____

78. How did Liza Koshy's feeling when her videos helped others? _____
