One day, I sat in a chair of a park and had nothng interesting to do . Then I started to watch two boys in the park. The elder one was about six years old and the younger one was about three years old. The two boys were riding their bikes. From the happy faces of the children, I thought they were brothers.

Suddenly, the little kid fell off his bike and started to cry. The elder one stopped riding his bike at once. He checked the little kid's legs first. Then he put his small hands on the little kid's head. He also made faces to make the little kid stop crying, but all these didn't work. The elder boy didn't know what to do, and he ran away. After a short time, he came back with a box of chocolates in his hands.

He gave the chocolates to the little kid and said nothing. At last the little kid stopped crying. When the little kid's mom came, he said goodbye to the elder boy.

At that time, I knew they weren't brothers! They were strangers, but the elder boy was so kind to the little boy. I think we should learn from the elder boy.
