Today most 13-year-olds spend their free time playing video games or sports, but Luke Thill keeps himself busy in a different way. He is crazy about DIY. Last summer, he decided to build his own house all by himself.

However, there was a problem. His $10-a-week pocket money just didn't cover the cost of the tools and materials for building his dream home. So he had to get some money first. He asked his parents for a little help. Then he got most of it by cutting grass, washing cars and walking dogs for his neighbours. It took him almost a year to raise the $1,500 he needed.

Luke built his house using recycled (回收的) material from his grandma's house. The front door of the house was a gift from his uncle's friend.

It took Luke a year to complete his house. The house has almost everything Luke needs. He has a comfortable bed, a living room with a sofa, and a small kitchen. However, there is no plumbing (管道) in the house, so he still needs to go back into his parents' house when he needs to use the bathroom.

Although his parents offered him some money, they didn't offer Luke a helping hand—he needed to do this all by himself alone.

“It was a chance (机会) for a kid to do something more than play video games or sports,” his father said. “It teaches life lessons. I'm happy for Luke.”

The last Monday in March is an important day in China. It is a day for school safety education. At school, the big accidents are mainly stampedes (踩踏), earthquakes and fires.

A stampede always happens in crowded places. When students around you begin to push, stand there and try to hold onto something. If you fall down in the crowd, put your hands around your head. Move to one side, and bend your body and legs.

Earthquakes happen all over the world. When you feel everything is moving, quickly get under a desk and hold on. If you are outdoors, find a place away from buildings, trees, and power lines (电线). In Japan, many schools take earthquake drills once a month. They help students stay calm (镇定的) in a real earthquake.

When there's a fire, leave the classroom quickly. It's better to put something wet over your mouth and nose. This way, you won't breathe in smoke. When there's a fire, people can't jump out of the window from higher than two stories (楼层). They may hurt themselves. In the US, most school buildings have fire escapes (防火梯).
