A young man got a chance to record two albums(专辑), but they didn't sell well. For many years, he lived on little money. He didn't know his songs became very popular in other countries and that his fans believed he was dead. It sounds like a fairy tale, but it isn't. It's an unusual but true story and this is only the half of it.

Sixto Rodriguez released(发行) his first album Cold Fact in 1970 in the US, and the second one Coming from Reality a year later. However, few people bought them. But in fact, his music was a huge success in three countries: Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. There, Sixto was a huge star.

In 1994, a South African fan named Stephen Seġerman and Craig Bartholomew, a journalist(新闻工作者), started a website called The Great Rodriguez Hunt, trying to find some information about the mysterious musician. Rodriguez's daughter saw it and the rest is history.

Sixto was invited on a big tour across South Africa in 1998. He gave six concerts all over the country. In 2012, Swedish film maker Malik Bendjelloul released the documentary Searching for Sugar Man. When the documentary got a nomination(提名) for an Oscar, the director invited Sixto to the ceremony, but he refused. He was worried that all the attention would be on him and not the film makers.

- ()26. What happened in 1971?
A. Cold Fact came out.
B. The Great Rodriguez Hunt was started.
C. Searching for Sugar Man was shown. D. Coming from Reality came out.
- ()27. The Great Rodriguez Hunt was started to _____.
A. explain why Sixto was famous
B. advise people to listen to Sixto albums
C. find out more about Sixto D. introduce the lifetime of Sixto

- ()28. Sixto gave concerts in _____ in 1998.
A. New Zealand B. South Africa C. Australia D. the US
- ()29. What does the underlined word "him" refer to?
A. The musician. B. The journalist.
C. The director. D. The South African fan.
- ()30. What's the passage mainly about?
A. The albums of Sixto Rodriguez.
B. A successful tour across South Africa.
C. A documentary made by an Oscar winner.
D. The amazing story of a super star.

As usual, Amber was hurrying to catch the yellow school bus. Luckily the traffic lights turned green as she was to cross the road, so she made it. When the bus passed the golden arches(拱形门) of McDonald's, they reminded her of a hamburger. She hadn't had breakfast that morning because the fruit salad on the blue dish didn't look delicious at all. However, Amber remembered that she was still on a diet(节食). So now she was really in a black mood(心情).

You may have noticed that several colors were used in the above story so as to help describe Amber's morning. In fact, colors influence your life more than you can ever imagine. Take language for example: You may describe a sick person as being "a bit green". To describe a depressed(沮丧的) person, you say that the person is "feeling blue". In short, colors do add interest to daily conversations.

Besides, colors can be used in many parts of your daily life. Have you ever thought about why many school buses and taxis are painted yellow, and stop signs red? Since yellow is the most eye-catching color, it can catch people's attention, especially in heavy traffic. As for red, it is the color which usually shows warning; as a result, some traffic signs use this color. For the same reason, hot-water taps(水龙头) are usually marked red.

The colors of a dining environment possibly decide how much you eat. Most fast-food restaurants are often decorated in bright colors such as red, yellow, orange, and white for the purpose of increasing people's appetites. This is because bright colors are natural colors found in many foods, and, therefore(因此), able to raise people's spirits. Blue, in comparison(比较) with bright colors, is said to lower people's appetites because few foods are blue in nature. For those who are on a diet, blue dishes and bowls might help!

"Morning, Amber! What happened? You look a bit green," said Violet, Amber's best friend.

"Nothing . . . just feeling . . . blue," said Amber.

"Hey! Come to my place tonight. Do you know what I just bought? A Wii! It's red-hot,"

Amber was tickled(使高兴) pink to have the chance to play with the Wii and said, "Sounds great!"

- ()31. According to the passage, if you are on a diet, _____ might help.
A. putting your food in a blue dish or bowl
B. turning on a yellow light during the meal
C. painting the walls of the dining room white
D. covering the dining table with an orange cloth

- () 32. Most school buses are painted yellow because _____.
A. it tells other drivers to prepare to stop
B. it helps bus drivers stay in a good mood
C. it can easily catch other people's attention
D. it is the color that most schoolchildren like
- () 33. What does the underlined word "appetites" mean in Chinese?
A. 兴致 B. 食欲 C. 修养 D. 能力
- () 34. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?
A. Colors influence people's daily lives.
B. Most fast-food restaurants are painted grey.
C. Different colors are used for different purposes.
D. Colors make daily conversations more interesting.
- () 35. What can we infer(推断) from the passage?
A. Amber was not fat at all.
B. Amber cheered up at Violet's invitation at last.
C. Violet didn't know how colors influenced our lives.
D. Arches of McDonald's are painted gold only to make them beautiful.
