Can a bird's feathers* be more precious than gold? To the ancient Maya Indians, the answer was yes.

The quetzal lives in the high mountainous regions of Mexico and Central America. Its three-foot-long shiny green tail feathers were priceless. Only kings could use them for their headdresses.

Many Maya believed the quetzal held magical powers. One legend tells about Maya soldiers fighting for freedom. Above the battlefield, hundreds of quetzals flew down quickly and guarded the wounded soldiers until sunrise. When the battle ended, the birds flew away—their chests became red forever.

The Maya considered the quetzal sacred and showed great respect to it. Over 2,000 years, it inspired* many forms of art as well as a feathered snake god called Kukulcan. The ancient cultures painted the image of this half-bird half-snake on stone columns, monuments and temples throughout their lands. Today it has become the national bird of Guatemala, a country in Central America, as well as a symbol of freedom. It can also be found on its national flag, stamps and many other things. And the currency* of Guatemala is "Quetzal".

However, the quetzal's home is getting smaller because people cut down the trees in highland forests and take away land for farming. Besides, some people catch or even kill quetzals for their tail feathers. Therefore, the quetzal is now in danger. To save it, countries are taking steps. For example, in Costa Rica, the government has set up wildlife reserves and passed strict laws to protect this jewel bird.

44. The quetzal is a bird that lives in _____.
 A. Europe B. America C. Africa D. Asia
45. According to the legend, quetzals _____.
 A. fought for their freedom B. protected the wounded king
 C. saved Maya people's lives D. brought Maya soldiers wealth
46. In ancient times, the Maya showed respect to the quetzal by _____.
 A. creating paintings of Kukulcan B. making it a symbol of freedom
 C. printing it on the national flag D. using "Quetzal" as the currency
47. The last paragraph is mainly about _____.
 A. the reasons why people kill quetzals B. strict laws on protecting the quetzal
 C. different forms of art about quetzals D. the difficult situation of the quetzal.

C

Just forget smartphones and smart glasses. One day, we might have smart tattoos*. The company Newdeal design came up with an idea for a product called UnderSkin. This device would look like a pair of tattoos on your hand, but it would in fact be a very thin computer implanted* just below your skin. It would draw power from the energy of your body, and you could use it to open doors, monitor your health, exchange and store information, or even express your personality. UnderSkin is just an idea, but the technology will make it work. "We expect it is about five years from being real," says designer Gadi Amit.

Amal Gratlstra, a writer and businessman, already has a chip* called a radio-frequency identification (RFID) tag, which is implanted in his left hand. "I use it to connect with my computer. I also use it to get in touch with people and carry out my daily work," he says. "The chip is about the size of a grain of rice. It is so light that I can even not feel it." he adds.

If a computerized tattoo or implanted tag isn't crazy enough for you, what about a brain chip? The company Intel is working on technology that would let you control your devices like computers and TVs with your brain. Dean Pomerleau, one of the researchers, explains, "We're trying to show that you can do interesting things with brain waves. Imagine being able to surf the Internet with the power of your thoughts."

Do you think implanted chips sound terrible or cool? Some doctors are afraid that people may hurt themselves with devices implanted. They argue that medical operations are meant to save sick people and not to give healthy people special powers. Others worry about hacking and privacy. Could someone hack in and steal your personal information, or even control your mind? On a more philosophical level, if you have a computer inside your body, are you still human? Or are you a robot?

48. UnderSkin is _____.
- A. a tattoo which is on your hand B. a product that offers you energy
C. a computer which is in your body D. a device that improves your skin
49. A RFID tag is mentioned in Paragraph Two to _____.
- A. introduce the history of implanted chips B. tell the disadvantages of implanted chips
C. describe the functions of implanted chips D. show the special shape of implanted chips
50. According to the passage, which of the following statements is TRUE?
- A. You can turn on lights with your mind by using a brain chip.
B. It isn't convenient to carry a RFID tag because it's too heavy.
C. Doctors believe implanted chips will do no harm to your health.
D. Implanted chips will help store your personal information safely.
51. Which of the following can be the best title for the passage?
- A. How to Produce Implanted Chips? B. Are You Ready For a Chip Implant?
C. Are Implanted Chips Smarter Than You? D. Who Makes Chip Implants for Humans?

Karie double-checked the words on her spelling test. If she got 100 points today, she would win her class's spelling competition and a brand-new dictionary. Also, Ms. McCormack had promised to do a handstand if anyone got a perfect score.

Three more words to go. N-i-c-e-l-y. Q-u-i-c-k-l-y. H-o-n-e-s-t-y. Wait! She had spelled honesty, not honestly! She erased the -t-y and wrote -l-y before handing in her paper.

After grading the test papers, Ms. McCormack walked into the classroom. Then, as if she were an Olympic gymnast*, Ms. McCormack's feet flipped into the air.

"Congratulations, Karie! You did it!" she announced while doing a handstand. The whole class cheered!

Ms. McCormack righted herself and presented Karie with her prize. It was a dictionary with the words: To Karie Carter, for her perfect score in spelling.

As soon as she arrived home, Karie showed Mom her spelling test paper and prize with excitement. "Well done, Karie." Mom hugged her.

Karie smiled widely and scooped* up her cat. "Can you spell nicely, Casper? And quickly and honestly, and ..."

▲ _____ Honestly?
H-O-N-E-S-L-Y!

Karie threw the test paper into her schoolbag, rushed to her room and fell onto her bed. How could she tell the class she hadn't earned the prize after all? That Ms. McCormack did the handstand for nothing?

Then, Karie thought back to the last time her mother had bought her brother Kevin a pizza after his school play. They had almost reached home when Mom realized that the shop keeper had given them too much change. "Let's turn around," Mom said. On the way back to the shop, Kevin kept saying, "But it's not our fault*. The shop keeper should have been more careful."

Had Kevin been right? If he had been right, then it wasn't her fault that Ms. McCormack had given her the prize. Shouldn't Ms. McCormack have been more careful when grading her test? Karie took out her pencil. If she put the missing "t" back in, no one would know.

The next morning, Karie got to school earlier than usual. Ms. McCormack was unlocking the classroom.

"I can't keep this. I misspelled honestly and you didn't catch it." Karie said with her head down, giving her teacher the spelling paper and the dictionary.

For a moment, Ms. McCormack stood silently, reading the words on the dictionary. Then she took out her pen, crossed out the word perfect and wrote honest before returning the dictionary to Karie.

Karie's jaw dropped. "I get to keep this? Honestly?"

"For honestly, no." Ms. McCormack smiled. "But for honesty, yes."

52. Ms. McCormack did a handstand in the classroom because _____.
 A. she wanted to show she had been a gymnast
 B. the whole class invited her to show her talent
 C. she was competing against Karie in handstand
 D. it was a prize for the winner of the spelling test
53. Which of the following sentences can be put in "▲" ?
 A. Karie's hands stopped in the mid-air.
 B. Karie looked at Casper with satisfaction.
 C. Karie was singing while walking around.
 D. Karie showed a quick handstand to her cat.
54. At the end of the story, Karie _____.
 A. lost the dictionary because of her carelessness
 B. advised her teacher to be more careful next time
 C. offered to give her prize back to Ms. McCormack
 D. corrected her mistake on the spelling paper secretly
55. What did Ms. McCormack mean by saying "For honestly, no. But for honesty, yes."? (About 40 words)

One possible version (115 words)

We Are Green Leaders

Everyone needs a healthy environment. As students, we can be green leaders and make our city a better place for living.

We can save water by reusing it and remember to turn off the lights when we don't need them. We should also try to divide the rubbish into several groups and throw it into the right trash bins. In this way, something can be recycled.

When we're outside, it's a good idea to take buses or ride bikes more often. It can help reduce air pollution. While shopping, we use cloth bags instead of plastic ones because they can be reused.

I believe that with our efforts we can make a difference to Wenzhou.

听力文本

第一节: 听小对话, 请从 A、B、C 三个选项中选择符合对话内容的图片。

1. M: Cindy, will we go to the old people's home for volunteer work in March?

W: Yes. We'll do our volunteer service on March 15th. There is still a week away.

2. W: The New Year is coming. Do you have any wishes, Bill?

M: I wish I can go to visit the Great Wall. It's one of the greatest man-made wonders in the world.

3. M: Linda, who is your hero?

W: My father. He is a scientist. He spends a lot of time doing experiments in his lab and has already had some important findings.

4. W: Ben, you look unhappy. What's wrong?

M: I failed my history exam. I'm afraid my mother will be mad at me when she knows this.

5. W: Steve, could you come to help me with the turkey?

M: OK. I'm coming. I was preparing for the speech to give thanks to everyone who helped us.

第二节: 听较长对话, 请从 A、B、C 三个选项中选出问题的答案。

听第一段较长对话, 回答 6-7 小题。

M: Hey, Mary! You don't look well. What's the matter?

W: My parents went to Beijing to visit my grandparents yesterday, and I was at home alone. I had a terrible time.

M: What happened?

W: I heard some strange noise last night. I was so afraid that I stayed awake all night long.

M: Don't worry. Just remember to lock the door tonight. Everything will be fine.

听第二段较长对话, 回答 8-10 小题。

W: OK! Today let's talk about great writers. Tony, who's your favorite writer?

M: Mark Twain. I think he is the greatest American writer. I love his books very much.

W: And when did you start reading his books?

M: When I was 12 years old, I began reading his novel The Adventures of Tom Sawyer.

W: Didn't you find it difficult to understand it?

M: Not really. I think many of his works were written in everyday English, so they're not difficult. That's why I like his books.

第三节: 听一段独白, 请根据内容从 A、B、C 三个选项中选择正确的选项, 完成信息记录表。

Good afternoon, everyone. We had a photo competition last week. Many students took part in it actively and we finally received 70 photos. Now I'm more than happy to read out the winners. Jim won the third prize. He took a photo of the green leaves with water drops in the early morning. It shows the hope of life. Peter got the second prize. His photo shows some boys playing basketball at the school playground and their classmates cheering them on excitedly. It reminds us: Never give up. The first prize went to Sarah. She named her photo "Love". In the photo, a little boy was reading a book to his sick grandfather. What a touching sight! All these photos will be put up on the school website and all the winners will get special awards. With the awards, they will be allowed to enter the photo exhibition to enjoy the amazing photos by some famous photographers. Congratulations to all of the winners.
