1. W: Tom, be careful with your new cup because it's made of glass.
M: Okay, but could you please buy me a plastic one next time?
2. W: Hi, Billy. Did you watch the talent show last night?
M: Hi, Kate. Er...I missed it. Was it wonderful?
W: Yes! It was well worth watching, especially the part of Mike, a teenage inventor.
3. W: Hey, your birthday is tomorrow, isn't it?
M: No, today is June 14. My birthday is two days after that.
4. W: It's said that you have a foreign friend.
M: Yes, he lives in London and we often chat on Wechat.
5. W: Do you find that Lily looks sad these days? What's the matter?
M: She didn't pass the math exam last week.
W: Really? But she was good at math, wasn't she?
M: Yes. But she was ill last month and was away from school for half a month. So she had missed too many classes.
6. W: Hi, Jim, you've come back, huh. How long did you stay in Korea?
M: Two weeks.
W: Did you enjoy yourself there?
M: Of course. The weather was perfect. It was a good time to visit there.
7. W: Hi, taxi!
M: Get in, please.
W: The train station, please. Would you mind driving a little faster? I'm taking the 10:30 train to Beijing.
M: I'm sorry, but it's not allowed. Take it easy, madam. You see, it's 9:00 now. I'm sure we can get there in time.
8. M: After a week's busy work, it's so happy to have a weekend! But I don't know where to go. Any ideas?
W: Could you have forgotten the two film tickets you booked last week?
M: Why didn't I think of that?

M: I'd like to buy a gift made in China for my wife. What can you suggest?

W: By the way, do you want to buy her something to wear or something to put in the house ?
 M: My wife likes beauty. I'm thinking of Chinese costume.
 W: Have you look at these clothes, please.
 M: Oh, these dresses are so nice. What do you call them in Chinese ?
 W: We Chinese call them, Qipao, a kind of long dress.
 M: Well, I see. I can't decide which color is better.
 W: In China, yellow was for a long period of time considered to be a symbol of power. Only kings and officials were allowed to wear the yellow.
 M: How much does it cost ?
 W: It is 800 yuan.
 M: Can you make it cheaper ?
 W: 20% off. It's the lowest price and it cannot be lower.
 M: OK. That's the deal.

It was our tradition to spend Thanksgiving with my mother's family. She was always excited about this because she didn't see them very often. My father, however, was not happy.

My mother's family lived in another state, and it was too expensive to fly there. My dad had to drive through snow and ice for hours to get us there, and then drive back in the dark after dinner. The drive was unpleasant, but this was not my fathers biggest trouble. He was unhappy because the food was always cold by the time everyone was ready to eat.

One year, after we sat down at the table, my father stood up, went into the kitchen straightly and began to heat his cold food. Everyone was silent for a moment. Then, one by one, all the men in the family picked up their plates, and followed my father to the kitchen.

We were not invited to spend Thanksgiving with this part of the family ever again!

We students are supposed to learn more about different cultures

I think we students are supposed to learn more about different cultures.

First of all, knowing more about different cultures will help us learn more about the world and get ourselves improved both in knowledge and customs. Secondly, with more and more foreigners coming to China, we students are supposed to know about their cultures so that we can get along well or keep a good relationship with them.

I once met an elderly American lady on the bus. I wanted to offer my seat to her. But she seemed a little unhappy and refused "No, I am not old." Just then I realized that I had made a mistake. Americans don't like the word "old" at all.

All in all, I do think it's worth the trouble to learn more about different cultures!
