Successful students can learn wisely. At the same time, they also know how to have a good time. If you want to be such a student, you're supposed to develop the following qualities first.

Studies come first. Successful students always make their studies the top priority(优先事项), whatever you want to do, you should never cut down the time you need to spend studying. This doesn't mean that you can never do the things you want to do, but studying should be at the top of your list.

Work honesty. This means you should do your ownwork, and avoid copying and cheating. Cheating won't get you anywhere, and one day can actually get you into a lot of trouble. Cheating also makes you think it's okay to take shortcuts(捷径) when it comes to life, and it can lead to some bad habits.

Stay focused (专心的). Successful students put their heart into the task at hand. After doing one task for more than 60 minutes, getting a short break is necessary. It can help you relax your mind and focus on the task again.

Don't compare yourself with anyone else. Successful students succeed on their own terms. They don't care what others do because they know that in the end, their own success is what they care about. If you care too much about other people, then you'll be disappointed in yourself or become so competitive. Learn to focus on what you are good at and do the best.

Get excited about the material. Successful students are interested in the material that they study, and this helps them improve in a rapid way. Of course, you can't get excited about every little thing you're learning, but you can try to find something that you care about in every class. This will make it fun for you to learn.

Earth Day has received more attention these days. It's celebrated on April 22 every year to encourage environmental protection. "Climate (气候) action" is chosen as the theme of this year's Earth Day and the following chart shows the top two purposes.

To encourage environmental education
To challenge people to make a difference in their local areas

Over the last fifty years, Earth Day has grown into a global movement which has drawn attention to many environmental problems. Luckily, many young people and their non-governmental organizations (NGOs) have risen up to make good changes.

One of these is the Ocean Cleanup. Over 100 million ocean animals die every year because of plastic. Run by 25-year-old Boyan Slat, the organization has made a machine that can collect waste from our oceans. Most of the waste is plastic.

But it is not just our oceans that are influencing. Every year, over 15 billion trees are cut down around the world to make room for humans and animal. China has done a lot to make the world greener. A Chinese NGO—China Green Foundation—is trying to change this by planting millions of trees.

Ant Forest
Alibaba's Ant Forest has received the 2019 Champions of the Earth prize, the UN's highest environmental honor, for encouraging people to live greener lifestyles.

Another NGO that is making changes is Welfare Togo. Togo is a developing country in Africa. 它面临很多环境问题，比如水污染。To help, Welfare Togo has opened 31 schools that try to teach sustainable(可持续)development. Its purpose is to use education to create a future for better Togo.

Not all of us can make such large contributions(贡献). However, through small everyday action, such as recycling our waste, we can bring plenty of changes to our natural world.
