Who is the greatest teacher in Chinese history? Many people would think of Confucius, whose birthday was September 28. Although he lived over 2,000 years ago, people still remember and respect him for his contribution to the education today.

Confucius lived in the Kingdom of Lu, which lies in Shandong Province. He lived during the Spring and Autumn Period. He had a hard childhood. His father died when he was only three. His mother brought him up. As a child, he had to work to help his mother, but young Confucius didn't give up studying. He visited many famous teachers and learned music, history, poetry and sports.

Later, he became a teacher and started the first public school in Chinese history. At that time, only children from noble families could go to school, but Confucius believed everyone should go to school if they wanted to learn. He had about 3,000 students in his lifetime. Today, people still follow Confucius lessons. He told us that we all have something worthy to be learned.

“When I am with three people, one of them must be better than me in some areas. I choose their good qualities and follow them.”

He also taught us that thinking is very important in study. “All study but no thinking makes people puzzled. All thinking but no study makes people lazy.”

The performers played different Chinese musical instruments on stage, swinging along with the beautiful sounds. Welcome to the debut performance of Moja – a band of three robots.

Students from Tsinghua University recently enjoyed a special musical play, which tells the story of a student who faces many challenges when he invents musical robots in a lab. The musical drama was performed by both human actors and robots.

The three Moja band members are Yuheng, Yaoguang and Kaiyang. They play traditional Chinese musical instruments – bamboo flute, konghou and drums.

The robot band project was developed by teachers and students from Tsinghua, as well as entrepreneurs made up of the university's graduates. The developers have different skills, such as robot control, sculpture artists, new media artists, drama experts and musicians.

“Considering the appearance, we try to create images from the view of sculptors, in order to make the robots' postures and shapes look more realistic”, says Mi Haipeng, who leads the project.

In recent years, as a new art form, robot art has appeared at home and abroad. Unlike industrial robots and service robots, art robots pay more attention to the relationship between robots and humans or between robots and social culture.
