Dear Mike,

How's everything going? I'd like to tell you our lives have changed a lot because of the COVID-19. Now, we are not supposed to shake hands when we meet friends for the first time. Instead, we bow or wave our hands. And we are used to talking with each other wearing masks. For dining habits, public chopsticks and spoons are offered in many restaurants and homes before meals. And many people get food with public chopsticks and spoons instead of using their own when they eat together. People don't go to crowded places any more after meals.

In my opinion, it is important and necessary for all of us to follow these new customs, because it helps protect us from viruses and reduce infections. It can help us stay safer and healthier.

Look forward to hearing from you!

Yours
Li Hua
