On my way home, I always saw a homeless man. He always stood at the side of the street near a traffic crossing. He was about 60 years old. He had long black and white hair and wore an old short coat. I felt sorry for him.

Every day after work, I would gather some spare change. I gave it to him if I saw him. Every time I saw him, he was very happy. Sometimes the red light would be on for a minute and we would have a short talk. His answer would always be the same, "I'm lucky!"

One day I lost my job. I was very sad. I thought to myself, as a mother of three children, I can't afford living expenses. I drove home sadly and lonely and forgot to look for spare change. When my car came near the homeless man, he looked at me with a smile.

While I was waiting for the red light to turn, he came over to my car and said, "Today I'll give you a dollar." He reached into his pocket and pulled out a dollar bill.

That day he taught me a valuable(珍贵的) lesson more than a dollar bill. No matter what happens, no one can take away your choice to be joyful. Every time I'm in trouble, I'll think of the homeless man's bill and his "I am lucky."
