M: Hi, Jenny! I'm in a bit of a hurry. I'll take a music lesson with Ms. Brown.

W: Hi, James. That's OK. I'm going to my math lesson with Mr. Smith. He's nice, but math is really difficult. Oh, Ms. Brown is fantastic!

M: I know. It was her idea for me to learn to play the drums. I wanted to learn to play the guitar at first, but she said I would prefer the drums. And she was right!

W: How long have you learned to play them now, James?

M: Well, I started last July, almost one year.

W: You know, I started learning the piano, but Mom wanted me to take dance classes. I couldn't do both, so I gave up the piano. But I really enjoyed the piano.

M: But, I expect you love dancing!

W: No, but many of my friends are in the same dance class, so we can talk to each other!

Text 11

M: Good morning, Miss. Chen.

W: Morning, Jack. You're graduating from junior high school in one week.

M: Yes, but that makes me sad, Miss Chen. Your classes have been great.

W: I'm glad to hear that. But the future will be exciting, too. What do you hope to do in the future, Jack?

M: I hope to pass the exam to get into senior high school.

W: I think you can do it. I remember you won a prize for science.

M: Yes, last year. I'd like to be an astronaut and go into space. It would be so exciting if I could do that.

W: That's an excellent plan, Jack. I believe in you!

M: Thank you, Miss. Chen. Oh, this weekend we're celebrating the end of junior high school. We're having a party. We'd like you to come!

W: Why, of course, I'd love to! I'll bring a graduation cake.

M: Thanks a lot! We can't wait!

Text 12

Steven is a shy person. He talks little especially with strangers. One day, he had to visit his friend Tom because Tom just moved house. Tom told Steven his new address and Steven wrote it down on a piece of paper. After breakfast, he set out. The weather was rainy and there weren't many people in the street. When he arrived at Tom's town, he looked for the piece of paper with Tom's address, but he couldn't find it. He became worried. He only remembered Tom was in an apartment called Fenghuang Garden, but he couldn't find it. He drove slowly along the street. Suddenly, he saw someone walking in front.

He took a deep breath, stopped his car and said politely, "Excuse me, but where's the Fenghuang Garden, please?" The man put away his umbrella. Guess what? The man was his friend Tom!

My Favorite Hobby

Everyone has his own hobby. It is very important to our future.

My favorite hobby is reading. When I was young, I didn't like reading very much. Although I had plenty of time, I spent it on computers. I didn't think reading was interesting and enjoyable. However, when I was twelve years old, I became interested in reading with the help of a nice Chinese teacher. When I was once in trouble, he offered me a book. After reading it, I became relaxed. From then on, I began to read more and learned a lot through reading. I will read more wonderful books to improve myself in the future.
