Dragon Head Raising Day: time for a haircut

China is a country with many colorful days and festivals. The Dragon Head Raising Day (Longtaitou) is one of them.

This special day is on the second day of the second month in the Chinese lunar calendar(阴历). It stands for(代表) the start of spring and farming.

The dragon is important in Chinese culture. We Chinese people call ourselves the "descendants(后代) of the dragon". Therefore, people celebrate the Dragon Head Raising Day with many customs about dragons.

On the day in ancient times, people put ashes(灰) in the kitchen. This was to "lead the dragon into the house". People believed that with the help of the dragon, they could have a good harvest(收成) in autumn.

Also, people eat special foods on that day. The foods are usually named after dragons. For example, people eat "dragon whisker(细须)" noodles and dumplings called "dragon teeth".

Today, many customs have faded away(消退). But one that has remained is the cutting of hair. It was said that a haircut during the first lunar month may bring bad luck to the mother's brothers. So many people have their hair cut on the Dragon Head Raising Day.

"In this life, what did you miss?" The wife asked the husband when she was 25. The husband replied: "I missed a new job opportunity." When the wife was 35, the husband angrily told her that he just missed the late bus. At 45, the husband said sadly, "I missed the chance to see my close relative before his last breath." At 55, the husband said he missed a good chance to retire(退休). At 65, the husband complained, "I missed a dental appointment(牙医预约)." At 75, the wife did not ask the husband anymore, the husband was kneeling(跪) in front of the very sick wife.

The husband hugged the wife tightly. "How did I allow myself to miss your deep love for me for 50 years?" he asked himself. This time he asked the wife the same question. The wife, with a smile and peaceful look, replied: "In this life, I did not miss having you!" The husband's eyes were full of tears. He always thought that they could be together forever. He was always busy. So much so that he was never thoughtful to his wife.

In this way, when you are gone, your loved ones would have nothing to feel sorry about. In the busy city life, there are many people who are always busy with work and neglect(忽视) the loved ones who care for them. But life is not permanent(永恒的), so always live in the moment. Express thanks to your loved ones in words. Show your care with actions. Treat every day as the last moment of life.
