Mouth is an important part of our body. When we eat food, talk with others, sing and smile, we use our mouth. Also, when learning English, we can find the word "mouth" in many sentences.

In everyday life, if someone says something bad about us, we can say "Do not bad mouth me" to talk back. Sometimes, if we say bad things that make others feel sad, we can say, "Sorry, I really put my foot in my mouth this time." We can also use "I am down in the mouth" to tell others our sad feelings. When we have the same ideas with our friends, we can say, "You take the words right out of my mouth!" If some people live in a rich family, we can say, "They were born with a silver spoon (银勺子) in their mouth." But a person who lives "from hand to mouth" is very poor.

From the above examples, we can see that even the same English word can be used in different situations (情况) to tell others different feelings. English is a great language, isn't it?

阅读下面短文, 按要求完成 66~70 题。

Hello Mary,

I'm very happy that you are coming to Beijing. Welcome to our school!

Now let me tell you something about the weather here. Spring is usually very short and the weather is windy in Beijing. It usually comes in March. Summer is often very hot. You need to wear your T-shirts, skirts or shorts. The weather in autumn is often sunny and cool. You can wear jackets or sweaters. And then winter comes. The days are short and the nights are long. Sometimes it snows and sometimes it is very sunny, but it is very cold. So you need to wear a lot of warm clothes.

When you come here in autumn, you can visit the Great Wall. It's very beautiful. I hope to see you soon.

Yours,

Wang Ling
