Once upon a time, there was phoenix tree (梧桐树). He can't have fruit. However, his leaves are like some small sun-umbrellas to protect people from the strong sunlight. He has never looked down upon himself. Instead, he has been proud because of that. One day at noon in summer, it was extremely hot. There was no wind and no cloud in the sky. The road was too hot to walk on. Anyone preferred to stay indoors rather than go out. As a result, there were few passengers walking on it. A moment later, some passengers appeared. They walked so slowly because of the heat. They were very tired. It seemed that they were looking for some places to cool down and have a rest. Suddenly, they found the phoenix tree. They decided to go under the tree for a rest. After a while, they became much cooler. A man looked up at the tree and thought for a while. Then he said to the others pointing at the tree, "Hey! This tree has no fruit. It is of no use." The others agreed with him as well.

At that time, the tree answered that, "You don't know what's good. You are getting my favor, but you say that I am useless without fruit." Hearing that, the people felt ashamed and left the phoenix tree without saying a word.

This is to say: Although some people know what good they are getting from others, they still criticize (批评) their benefits. So no matter how tiny the things are, we should appreciate them with a grateful heart.

When you are not at home, many worries may start to crowd your mind. Did I turn the light off? Did I lock the door? With a smart home, you can keep away from all of these worries.

A smart home is a home with a communication network. This network connects devices, such as lights and TV sets, and allows them to be controlled from far away through electrical wiring (线路), mobile phone communication or Wi-Fi over the Internet.

More and more people may start to consider owning a smart home, because it makes life much more convenient. It can help keep your room at a certain temperature. It can record what happens inside the home and send the video to your phone. When you are on vacation abroad, you can use a smart home controller to turn on or off the electricity when necessary. Some smart homes can receive a visitor, allowing him to come in and offering him a drink. They can even feed the cat and water the plants.

Besides, smart homes are easy to fix. When a problem appears, you can deal with it yourself. However, for home-users, the smart home technology is far from perfect. It can be rather expensive to own the technology and the devices. Also, because the smart home system allows its owner to get home information from anywhere, it leaves the home easy to be attacked by hackers (黑客), who may secretly use or change their information in the system.

Now many scientists are excited at the future of smart home technology. Imagine being able to get fashion advice from your mirror, or receive food shopping suggestions from your fridge. While there are others who worry that those smart devices will make people lazier and lonelier. Whatever it is, one thing is for sure--smart home technology will change the way we live and work.

(B)

I remember when I was growing up, my mom always said, "Half the fun of doing anything is sharing it with others." It's so true. Friends allow us to enjoy the taste of our success and our joys and comfort us in our challenging moments. They provide a mirror for us to learn more about ourselves. I've always regarded friends as the family members. They make our lives rich. As Robert Louis Steven once said, "A friend is a present which you give yourself."

To be a good friend, being a good listener is very important. Hear what your friend says first rather than making conclusions quickly. Sometimes it's best to repeat their words back to them. It can help them to realize whether their words were what they wanted to say.

Having patience(耐心) is also important in being a good friend. You know the old golden rule, "Care for others the way you would like them to care for you." The support of a friend during a difficult time could make the difference between success and failure.

We should choose our friends carefully, because they can have a huge effect on our life. As someone told me, "The attitudes of your friends are like the buttons(按钮) on a lift. They will either take you up or down."
