"It's a magic tail," the wizard said, "When someone wears it and acts bravely, he or she will turn into a strong lion." Leo hung the lion's tail behind his body and decided to teach the bad boys a lesson.

But when the boys came, Leo was afraid and tried to run away. Yet they caught him. Suddenly, Leo showed the tail and remembered what the wizard had said. He became brave. The boys ran away in fear. Leo wanted to catch them, but he found his legs were as short as before.

When the wizard saw it, he came to Leo. Leo was very happy, though a little disappointed because his lion body had lasted only a short time.

"You are great." said the wizard, "But have you ever seen a lion fighting? No one fights with lions because they know how brave and strong lions are." Yes. Leo had never seen a lion fighting. If you walk through a park in the morning or in the evening, you might see a lot of people doing these beautiful movements—Carry the tiger over the mountain and White crane spreads its wings. In fact, they are doing Taichi.

Taichi is an ancient martial art (武术). It is a common kind of exercise in China. More than 100 million people in over 150 countries practice Taichi at present. Recently UNESCO(联合国教科文组织) has added Taichi to its Intangible Cultural Heritage List(非物质文化遗产名录). Many Taichi fans were happy to hear of it. "This will make Taichi more popular around the world. Hopefully, more people will become healthier by practicing it." said Chen Bin. He is a Taichi master from the village of Chenjiagou, Henan Province. This village is the birthplace of Chen-style Taichi.

It's true that doing Taichi is good for our health. It can make us walk and move more freely, and it can also make us stronger. During slow movements, we can focus on our hands and feet. We can control them better. Slow movements also help us to take deep and long breaths.

Taichi also focuses on the harmony (和谐) between yin and yang. It shows how the ancient Chinese people saw the world. The world is full of yin and yang: dark and light, soft and hard, female and male. But they don't oppose (对立) each other completely. As we see in the picture, a white spot is in the black area and a black spot is in the white area. After a dark night, the sun will rise. Leaves fall in autumn but grow in spring. Everything keeps changing—that is how we should see the world.

Taichi carries old Chinese philosophy (哲学), such as being in harmony with nature and using softness to beat hardness. It has become a symbol of Chinese culture.

54. What's the advantage of doing Taichi?

- A. People can learn about different animals.
- B. People can improve their wealth.
- C. People can have a healthier life.
- D. People can walk everywhere freely.

55. Which of the following words can best describe the movements of Taichi?

- A. Slow and beautiful.
- B. Free and exciting.
- C. Fast and long.
- D. Strong and tiring.

56. Why has Taichi been added to Intangible Cultural Heritage List recently?

- A. Because it is a symbol of Chinese culture.
- B. Because it is from the village of Chenjiagou.
- C. Because it can make us see the world clearly.
- D. Because it can use softness to beat hardness.

57. What is the author's purpose in writing the text?

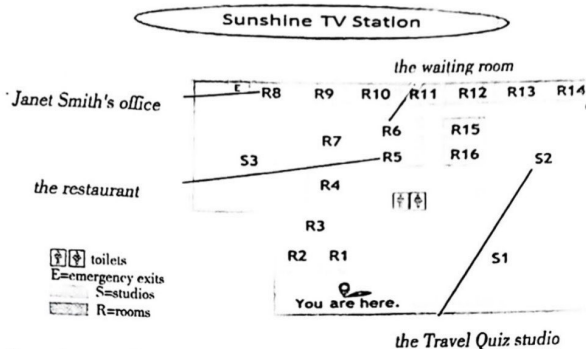

- A. To ask people to do Taichi in their free time.
- B. To introduce an ancient martial art—Taichi.
- C. To teach people how to do Taichi correctly.
- D. To explain why Taichi can improve our health.

Today, weight problems, heart disease and many forms of cancer (癌症) are becoming more common because many people have unhealthy diets. Everywhere, people are thinking about how they can eat better. There are many different answers to this question. Some people think that (A) 糖对于你的健康有害. Others say that eating food with sugar is the best way to give your body energy. Some people eat meat while others do not. It is (B) hard to say who is right or who is wrong.

However, most doctors agree on one thing: you need a balanced diet to stay healthy. A balanced diet means eating different kinds of food from each of the (C) food groups: grains, vegetables, fruit, dairy products and protein. Having different kinds of food in your diet is important. In fact, doctors warn us that (D) not eating certain kinds of food is dangerous. Your body cannot work properly without a balanced diet. On the other hand, having too much of anything, including your favourite food, is dangerous too.

Doctors say, for example, if people eat (E) lots of food such as hamburgers and pizza, they will probably become fat. This may increase the risk of heart attack.

To help you decide what to eat and what not to eat, you should do some research and have a medical examination. Information about your body's need for fats, proteins, minerals (矿物质) and vitamins (维生素) can help you decide (F) the right things to eat and the right amount to eat. The natural world is colorful with humans, plants and animals showing different colors.

Human skin can be many different colors and it changes with the sun, our feelings or our health for example. This is because of pigments (色素), which reflect light and make what the eye sees as colors. So (A) 当我们感到兴奋或生气时, our heart can send more blood to the face and the pigments in the skin become red. This is why we have the expression that someone "sees red" when they are angry.

Plants also have pigments. ① Color is important for them to live on. The bright colors of flowers catch the attention of insects, which then carry their pollen (花粉) from one flower to (B) . Bees can see colors we cannot, and they follow these to the inside of the flower. Without bees visiting flowers in this way, many plants would die out.

② They protect themselves with different colors so as not to be seen by predators (捕食者). The snowshoe hare for example, a type of wild rabbit, changes color with seasons for this reason. During summer it is a brown color, and in winter it is white so that it can hide in the snow. However, (C) some animals use color as a warning to make predators stay away. Bright colors such as yellow and red are often used in this way. Nature, however, is very clever, and predators also use colors to attract the animals they feed on. ③

So, we can see that there may be many different reasons and uses for colors in the natural world. Some uses of color in nature are still unknown; (D) one thing is for sure, color not only makes our planet beautiful but it is also necessary for our planet to live on.
