Samuel Osmond is a 19-year-old student from Cornwall, England. He never studied the piano. However, he can play very difficult musical pieces by musicians such as Chopin and Beethoven just 31 minutes after he hears them. He learns a piece of music 32 listening to it in parts. Then he thinks about the notes in his head.

Two years ago, Samuel played his 33 piece Moonlight Sonata(奏鸣曲) by Beethoven. He surprised 34 around him. He can't understand 35 people are so surprised. "I grew up with music. My mother played the piano and my father played the guitar. When I start to play the piano, it is 36 to me—I hear the notes and can keep them in mind—each and every note," says Samuel.

Recently, Samuel performed a piece during a special event at his college. 37 piece has more than a thousand notes. It is so difficult that many professional pianists can't play it. But Samuel says 38, "It's all about super memory—I guess I have that gift(天赋)."

Samuel is still only a teenager. He doesn't know what he 39 to do in the future. For now, he is just happy to play beautiful music and go on with 40 studies.

B

Big snowstorms and cold air swept across the north of China in the first week of November. Many people were shaking in the heavy snow. They wonder, "If the Earth is getting warmer, how can winter still be so cold?" The answer lies in the difference between local weather and climate(气候).

Climate is how the atmosphere(大气层) acts over a long period of time while weather describes what's happening on a much shorter time. Even on a day when it is colder than average(平均) in a place, the world as a whole is warmer than average. For example, parts of the United States were 1 to 9 degrees colder than average, but the world as a whole was about 0.9 degree warmer than the 1979-2000 average.

While climate scientists expect that the world could be 1-2 degrees warmer by the end of the century, they don't think it means the end of winter. Record(创记录的) low temperatures will still happen, they'll just become rarer over time. One 2009 study found that the United States saw as many record highs as record lows in the 1950s, but by the 2000s there were twice as many record highs as record lows.

Another reason for the cold weather is the warming Arctic(北极), according to BBC. It is warming almost three times as fast as any other place on Earth. As the temperature increases, lots of cold Arctic air goes to the south.

So, will this winter be much colder? A report says it is highly possible. North China may see more snow than average while South China may get less rain than average.

56. What's the difference between climate and weather?
- A. Climate has higher temperatures.
 - B. Climate covers a longer time.
 - C. Climate covers more places.
 - D. Climate has a greater power.
57. What does the underlined word "rarer" probably mean in Chinese?
- A. 宜人的
 - B. 稳定的
 - C. 恶劣的
 - D. 少见的
58. What's happening in the Arctic?
- A. It's colder and colder.
 - B. It has much less air.
 - C. It warms fastest on Earth.
 - D. It's moving to the south.
59. What's the weather going to be like in the coming winter?
- A. It will be much colder in North China.
 - B. South China will probably see some snow.
 - C. It will be warmer and wetter in South China.
 - D. North China will have a dry and cold winter.
60. Which part of a newspaper is this passage probably from?
- A. Science.
 - B. Way of Life.
 - C. Education.
 - D. World news.

To find out the relationship between healthy habits and longevity(寿命), some scientists studied data(数据) from more than 78,000 women and 44,000 men. Results came out online in Circulation on April 30, 2018.

They found the following healthy habits could help people live longer.

Diet—get the daily recommended(推荐的) amounts of vegetables, fruit, nuts, whole grains and omega-3 fatty acids and take less red meats and drinks with added sugar.

Smoking—Well, there is no healthy amount of smoking. “Healthy” here means never having smoke. People who smoke may die earlier from cancer or other serious diseases.

Exercise—getting at least 3.5 hours of physical activity each week.

Drinking—drink only moderate amounts of alcohol (one drink or less a day for women or two drinks or less a day for men).

Body weight—keep a normal weight (body mass index, or BMI, between 18.5 and 24.9).

At age 50, women who didn't have any of the above healthy habits lived 79 years and men 75.5 years. But women who had all the above healthy lifestyle habits lived 93.1 years and men lived 87.6 years.

This study shows the importance of following healthy habits for improving longevity.

However, very few people develop healthy habits. So, the government should do more to create healthy food and social environments to support and promote(推广) healthy diet and habits.

81. Where can you find the study result?
