"When I was thinking about new kinds of tours, I met one of my friends. He said he was stressed out by work, and he couldn't sleep at night," said Kenneth Kong, the marketing and business manager of Ulu Travel, "But when he was traveling on the bus, he was able to sleep well. His words made me think of a different bus tour — people could just get some sleep on the bus and tour Hong Kong in the dream."

Tickets cost from $13 to $51 each for different seats*. To make the sleep more comfortable, each passenger* can pick their own seat. The tour also offers each passenger a bag with an eye-mask and ear plugs in it. Passengers should try to be quiet along the way.

The first “Sleeping Bus Tour” tickets last Saturday sold out quickly. Some passengers came with their own blankets and changed their shoes to slippers, while others brought travel pillows.

On the tour, the bus stopped on the way so some passengers could take photos at some beautiful sights on the city’s Lantau Island.

“I always suffer* from insomnia so I am here to try,” said 25-year-old Anson Kong, one of the passengers on the first bus tour. He said that the tour was a good idea and brought a lot more fun than he thought.

Another passenger, Marco Yung, said that he joined the tour because he often fell asleep on long-distance bus journeys, and it was a great chance to get some sleep.

29. Kenneth Kong got the idea of Sleeping Bus Tour from _____.
 A. his sleeping problem B. his friend’s experience
 C. many new kinds of bus tours D. some passengers’ words
30. If you want to try a comfortable sleeping bus tour, you need to _____.

 A. can’t often sleep very well B. want to enjoy an exciting tour
 C. fall asleep quickly on the bus D. don’t like the sleeping bus tour
32. The writer shows the passengers’ love for the first tour by _____.
 A. telling stories B. asking questions
 C. giving examples D. comparing numbers

In Indian traditional culture, people believe that the rangoli will bring them good luck. Aldis made one of a peacock* every year. It was not hard but it took a lot of time. First, she would draw on the floor with chalk. Then, she would fill the drawing with colored rice.

This year, her grandson Calvin was old enough and finally got a chance to help. But he did a terrible job at first. Sometimes his rice was out of the drawing. Sometimes he used the wrong color. And sometimes he made it so unclear that Aldis had to redraw it. Calvin felt unhappy.

“Don’t worry,” Aldis smiled, “It takes practice.”

So Calvin kept working. And slowly, the rice turned into a beautiful peacock. At that time, the phone rang and Aldis left to answer it. When Calvin watched the peacock, he noticed a little gap*.

Should he fix* it?

“I’ll surprise Aldis!” He decided and then he started to work on the gap.

Suddenly, Calvin fell down and the rice went everywhere. “No!” His smile disappeared. Calvin tried hard to push it back, but the colors were mixed*.

When Aldis came back, Calvin looked down and said, “I’m so sorry. I should wait for you ...”

Aldis shook her head, “You saw a problem and tried to fix it. You are a good boy.”

“But the rangoli was not good now,” Calvin said.

“No worries. We can fix it together,” Aldis said.

They picked up the rice and began the work. Just before nightfall, they finished fixing it.

Calvin said excitedly, “We did it!”

“We are a good team,” Aldis said.

Aldis and Calvin both thought the peacock looked much more beautiful this year. The new year must be full of good luck, thanks to Aldis — and Calvin.

33. Calvin did a poor job at first because _____.
 A. it was his first time to do it B. he was still too young to help
 C. it was difficult to make a peacock D. he didn’t want to help his grandma
34. Aldis said “You are a good boy.” to _____.
 A. thank Calvin for his waiting B. tell Calvin he was right to have a try
 C. ask Calvin to change himself next time D. show Calvin was very calm and careful
35. What’s the best title of the passage?
 A. A Helpful Boy B. A Terrible Work C. A Good Team D. A Strict Grandma
36. Why did Aldis and Calvin think the peacock looked more beautiful this year?(请用约 40 词回答)

四、语法填空（本题有 10 小题，每小题 1 分，共 10 分）

阅读短文，根据上下文或括号内所给英文单词，写出空白处的英文单词以及它们的正确形式，补全文本。

It is not difficult for us to see black-and-white pandas in the green bamboos in a zoo. But wait! Can a tiger see pandas as 37 (easy) as we can? If so, pandas might be 38 great danger in the wild.

In 2021, 39 new study shows that pandas’ black-and-white color helps them hide in the wild. “If we want 40 (understand) animal colors, we need to look at where they live,” Tim Caro from University of Bristol wrote in his research report. Pandas live in mountain forests in Southwest China. There are shady* places, as well as 41 (snow) areas. Pandas' faces and many other areas are white to help them hide in the snow. 42 (they) arms and legs are black to help them hide in the shade.

Pandas eat bamboo. They don't have enough body fat* to live in winter 43 they must look for food all year round. The black-and-white color breaks up the panda's shape. This makes it harder for other 44 (animal) to see them.

Now in China, there are more than one thousand eight 45 (hundred) pandas in the wild. The black-and-white color not only makes them cute, but also 46 (protect) them from being killed.
