Every school has its rules. Most rules are the same. But some are different. Here are some funny (奇怪的) school rules:

Japanese rules

Most schools ask the students to wear school uniforms. But can you imagine the students, including some of a very young age, only wearing T-shirts and shorts in winter? Other Japanese schools tell students they can't go to the cinema, play computer games or leave home at night.

Rules in the U.S.

In some schools, students must wear indoor shoes in school every day. So the students won't fall down (摔倒), and they are safe on the floors. The indoor shoes can keep the schools clean, too. Students can't eat gum (口香糖), because it's hard to clean.

Rules in the U.K.

Students can't have long hair in some British schools. But the students can have certain hairstyles (特定的发型) during the World Cup years.
