(B)

My husband Shane and I were hanging out on the street one evening. I was talking but he was looking over at someone.

He walked over to a young girl who was crying. As he talked to her, I could see from his body language that he was trying to calm her down. When I joined them, I realized that she had been homeless for some time. She told Shane that all she wanted was to go to her sister's house in another city.

Some people would have handed her some money, wished her lunch or maybe allowed her to make a call. Shane did much more. He said, "Kelly, I can't leave her here like this. Sometimes people need someone not only to help them but to believe they're telling the truth."

It was a bit cold, so we had an idea to take her home. When I asked her if she'd like to go home with us, she thanked me about a million times with tears in her eyes.

We went home and I gave her some clean clothes to wear and told her she could use the shower. We ate something. Finally, she told us her story.

In the morning she was finally able to get a hold of her sister, so she had a place to go. Shane drove her to the bus station and bought her a ticket.

Sometimes what people need is not just money, but people who will trust, listen to and understand them.

A warm drink of milk before bed has long been the best choice for those wanting a good night's sleep. But now a study has found it is really good for sleep—if it is milked from a cow at night.

Researchers have discovered that “night milk” has more melatonin(褪黑激素), which can help people feel sleepy and less worried.

In the study, mice were fed with dried milk powder(奶粉) made from cows milked both during the day and at night by researchers. Those given night milk, which had 10 times the amount(数量) of melatonin, were less active and less worried than those fed with the milk collected during daytime, according to the study. Night milk caused the mice to sleep longer.

Although the effect(影响) of milk collected at different time has not been tested on humans so far, taking melatonin medicine has been suggested to those who are trying to fall asleep at night.

Studies have also shown that milk can be excellent for helping sleep because there is calcium(钙) in it, which helps people to relax.

根据短文内容, 判断下列各句子正(T)、误(F)。(5分)

71. According to the passage, the mice fed with daytime milk were less active.
72. The study has been tested on mice for ten times.
73. People with sleeping problems have been advised to drink milk collected during the night by researchers.
74. Milk is good for sleep because there is melatonin and calcium in it.
75. The writer shows the main idea of the passage by providing research results.

I am a plastic bottle. A week ago, I was on a supermarket shelf. 76 I felt really happy.

Then a tall woman picked me up and put me in her basket! The woman took me home and put me in the fridge. 77 However, only a few hours later, she took me out of the fridge and drank the water inside me. Then she threw me into a dustbin. I have never felt so empty and alone in my life.

Early the next morning, a man took me out of a dustbin. He threw me and the other rubbish into the back of a truck. There were so many bad smells. 78 Soon I was completely flat(扁平的). I can't believe how thin I became.

I slept for a while. When I woke up, I found myself in a terrible place. Everything around me was ugly and had bad smells. I felt afraid. 79 Finally, huge trucks came and covered us with something.

80 She said that we would never leave this place, but would have to stay here for thousands of years.

“Why can't they recycle us?” I cried.

阅读短文, 把 A-E 五个句子填入文中空缺处, 使短文内容完整。(5分)

- A. I kept hoping that I would be moved somewhere else.
- B. Then I was pushed together with the rest of the rubbish.
- C. I asked another bottle what would happen to us.
- D. I had a normal life, the same as other bottles full of water.
- E. It was cold, but I soon made friends with the cans and bottles in
