四、阅读理解 阅读下列短文, 根据短文内容选择最佳答案。(36分)

If you are dreaming of visiting one of those picture-perfect European towns filled with old-world scenic beauty, here is a look at the most beautiful small towns in Europe.

Manarola

Manarola, Italy, is filled with rainbow-colored homes along the Mediterranean (地中海) coast. This attractive fishing town is famous for its unbelievable wine, and the paintings. There are no cars here, no traffic lights, or traffic noise. You can drive to Manarola, but you will have to park just outside the town and then take a shuttle bus or walk in on foot.

Garmisch-Partenkirchen

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, is a wonderful mountain town, once two separate towns, one Roman and the other Teutonic. The 1936 Winter Olympics forced them to become one, though the two sides still have different characters. The town dates back to 15 AD, filled with narrow streets lined with historic three or four-story buildings painted with religious scenes (宗教场景).

Marsaxlokk

The energetic trading port of Marsaxlokk, Malta, was built in 900 BC. Today, this picture-like town is the main supplier (供应地) of fish to the island nation that sits in the Mediterranean Sea. It has no modern buildings to destroy its attractiveness. With such quiet surroundings (环境), including the traditional fishing boats, it is a particularly charming (迷人的) place to visit.

Port Magee

In a country filled with beautiful towns, Port Magee, is a standout (杰出), sitting on the southwest coast of Ireland. This seaside fishing town has a row of brightly colored buildings along with a rich and colorful history. At The Bridge Bar, you will find live music many nights of the week along with nice food and a fine glass of beer.

B

Body image anxiety (身体形象焦虑) is common among teenagers. For example, Zeng, a college student from Chengdu said, "Almost all the girls in my class with single-fold eyelids (单眼皮) have had done double eyelid operations." She also had done it this year because most people believe bigger eyes look more beautiful. Do you know why most of teenagers care about their appearance?

First of all, as the old saying goes, "Everyone has a heart for beauty." It is natural for teenagers to look for beauty.

Besides, with the development of science and technology, teenagers have more chances to change their appearance, such as double eyelid operation and so on.

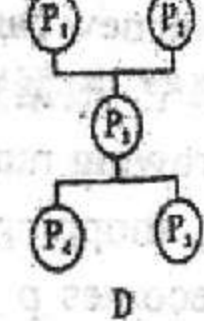

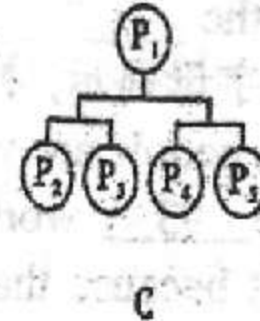

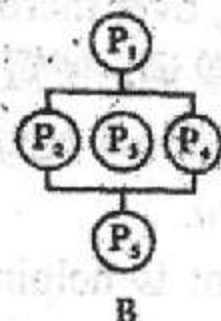

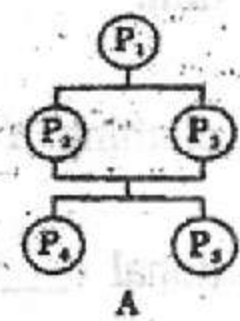

Then, perfect faces and bodies are everywhere in advertising TV shows and social medium. Maybe this has hurt their self-confidence. Seeing all these things can make anyone believe that they are too dark, too fat, too short or too tall. As a result, most of them choose to change themselves. Then they can be more confident about their appearance.

As a matter of fact, appearance is not the only judgment (判断) standard of our lives. It is clear that teenagers should change their mind. If so, they will find their inner beauty instead of paying attention to their appearance all the time. After all, health and learning are the most important things for students.

50. What does the writer mean by listing the saying "Everyone has a heart for beauty."
A. We should understand the teenagers' dream for beauty.
B. Teenagers should listen to others' advice when looking for beauty.
C. Teenagers should look for beauty in a right way.
D. Looking for beauty becomes very popular among teenagers.
51. Why do most of teenagers care about their appearance?
A. Because each of them has heard the old saying.
B. Because they can afford to change their appearance.
C. Because they are too dark, too fat, too short or too tall.
D. Because they are affected by TV shows and social medium.
52. What does the writer think is the most important thing for students?
A. Appearance B. Inner beauty C. Health and learning D. Ability
53. Which of the following might be the best title for the passage?

- A. More and more anxiety about body image B. Should we pay much attention to appearance
C. How important perfect faces and bodies are D. Less and less care about the inner beauty

54. Which of the following shows the structure of this article?(P1= Paragraph 1.....)

For Shaholly Ayers, who was born without a right arm, "no" is something she's used to hearing. As a child, her teachers told her she wouldn't be able to take part in a gym class. As a teenager, coaches told her she wouldn't make the basketball team. And then in college, as she dreamed of becoming a fashion model, an agency (代理机构) she approached said, "It just wouldn't work." That day, about 10 years ago, Ayers decided to take action. She decided to realize her dream without an agent.

"I was so new, and I was so green," she said. "I didn't have a portfolio or anything. I had to start at the very beginning. I worked with photographers and makeup artists to build my portfolio first, and then I started going to local fashion shops and telling them I'd model for them for free. It worked."

Ayers has since taken part in six seasons of New York Fashion Week, mostly recently walking the runway for Art Hearts Fashion's shows last month. She has also modeled for Nordstrom, which has nearly 400 chain stores in the USA.

Ayers has a job in digital marketing that she loves, but she hopes to one day be a full-time model. Ayers also hopes to help others find their dream careers as a brand ambassador (品牌大使) for Global Disability Inclusion, a company that helps companies attract and hire people with disabilities.

"She shows all we represent," a manager for the firm said. "She shows to the world that a person with a disability is confident, qualified and, yes, beautiful to be a world-class model."

Ayers, who asked TODAY Style not to give away her age, as it's yet another hurdle she has to face in the modeling world, has come a long way from being a little girl in Oregon, where she grew up.

55. What can we learn from the first paragraph?

- A. Shaholly Ayers lost her right arm in a traffic accident.
B. Shaholly Ayers gave up her dream to become a model.
C. Her teacher encouraged Ayers to take part in a gym class.
D. Shaholly Ayers was often refused because of her disability.

56. What can we infer about Shaholly Ayers?

- A. She is now a part-time model. B. She isn't fond of her present job.
C. She has set up a company. D. She wishes to become an ambassador.

57. What does the underlined word "hurdle" mean in the last paragraph?

- A. condition B. difficulty C. luck D. puzzle

58. Which of the following words can best describe Shaholly Ayers?

- A. Patient and careful B. Humorous and wise C. Hardworking and helpful D. Friendly and honest

The first and best of victories for a man is to conquer (征服) himself; to be conquered by himself is, of all things, the most shameful," says Plato. Self-control is at the root of all the advantages. Let a man give in to his impulses (冲动) and feelings, and from that moment he gives up his moral freedom.

A single angry word has lost many friends. When Socrates found in himself any temper or anger, he would check it by speaking low in order to control himself. If you are conscious of being angry, keep your mouth shut so that you can hold back rising anger. Many a person has dropped dead in great anger. Fits of anger bring fits of disease. "Whoever the gods would destroy, they first make them mad." "Keep cool," says Webster, "anger is not argument." "Be calm in arguing," says George Herbert, "for anger makes miss a fault."

To be angry with a weak man is to prove that you are not strong yourself. "Anger," says Pythagoras, "begins with foolishness and ends with regret." You must measure the strength of a man by the power of the feelings he conquers, not by the power of those which conquer him.

Self-control is man's last and greatest victory.

If a man lacks self-control he seems to lack everything. Without it he can have no patience, no power to govern himself; he can have no self-confidence, for he will always be controlled by his strongest feeling. If he lacks self-control, the very backbone and nerve of character are lacking too.

59. What's the main idea of the passage?

- A. Self-control is important for a man
B. We should learn to be strong.
C. A man who keeps cool won't lose any game.
D. The great heroes in history knew how to control themselves.

60. What does the underlined sentence in Paragraph 2 mean?

- A. If you are mad, the gods will fail you.
B. If you lose your temper first, gods will fail you first.
C. If you can't control yourself, you will be crazy.
D. If the gods want to fail you, they will make you mad first.

61. Which of the following is NOT true, according to passage?

- A. The first and best of victories for a man is to conquer himself.
B. You will make a small mistake serious if you don't keep cool.
C. You must measure a man's strength by the power of the feelings which conquer him.
D. Anger begins with foolishness and ends with regret.

62. Which of the following can't help you avoid anger, according to the passage?

- A. Being calm in arguing B. Checking your temper or anger by speaking low.
C. Keeping your mouth shut D. Trying to make the other angry first.

63. If a man lacks self-control,

- A. he will always be controlled by all the people all the time.
B. he will begin with foolish everything every day and lack the strength.
C. moral (精神的) strength and nerve of character will lack as well.
D. he will have power of govern himself.

The Mid-Autumn Festival is the second largest festival in China after the Spring Festival. Families come together to enjoy the full moon and eat mooncakes during the festival. In fact, besides these two traditions, there are many others.

In ancient times, watching the tide on the Qiantang River in Zhejiang Province was another great event of the Mid-Autumn Festival. The tide is very wonderful and attracts many visitors. It has been recorded exactly since the Han dynasty. You can find something about tide in detail from the ancient books. Many famous ancient poets, like Su Shi in the Song Dynasty, wrote about the great event in their poems. Today, watching the tide on the Qiantang River is still a special event for the festival.

The clay (泥土) rabbit is a traditional handicraft in Beijing at the Mid-Autumn Festival. Based on an image of the Jade Rabbit from the story of Chang'e in the Moon Palace, a clay rabbit is made in a special art form.

Drinking Osmanthus-flavored (桂花香的) wine is also popular at the Mid-Autumn Festival. Many people like drinking Osmanthus-flavored wine at the Mid-Autumn Festival because it means sweetness, wealth and prosperity of the family.

Nowadays, some traditional customs are disappearing. The younger generation have their own ways to spend the Mid-Autumn Festival, such as shopping, going to a party, or traveling, seemingly forgetting the traditional customs of the festival. This is because many in the 80s and 90s generations have a lot of stress in studying, work or life. However, if they had a chance, they would come back home to have a big dinner with their families.

回答下面5个问题, 每题答案不超过8个词。

64. Which is the largest festival in China?

65. How many traditional activities are mentioned in the article?
 66. When did people begin to record the tide on Qiantang River?
 67. What does Osmanthus-flavored wine mean?
 68. Why do younger generations seemingly forget the tradition customs of the festival?

Confidence plays a very important role in people's life. It gives people light when they are in dark and encouragement when they are depressed(沮丧的). It is the first step on the road to success. What is the secret of confidence. It is built, not inborn. You can try these simple tips for increasing your confidence levels.

• Accept your failure. Anybody who's out there really working hard is going to fail repeatedly. If you are not failing, you are not trying. Only when you face up to your difficulties, can you build up your confidence and give yourself a chance of success.

Dress your success. You don't have to be beautiful to be confident. Make the most of your own special physical advantages and not always pay attention to your faults so that you know you are giving out your best image.

Listen to yourself: do not look down upon yourself. You are the only person who knows what is right for yourself. Don't put others' opinion above your own inner voice.

Build a confidence vocabulary. Stop putting yourself down, and stop keeping regretting about your tiny mistakes. Learn to highlight(强调) your advantages and the world will learn to see and admire them too.

Confidence is a plant that grows slowly. We should build confidence through constant and patient effort. Only when we have enough confidence in ourselves, can we take the first step on the road to success.
