Lesson from space

(Elastic bands (弹力带) keep astronauts' muscles (肌肉) strong. CCTV) Zhai Zhigang, Wang Yaping and Ye Guangfu are working on China's Tiangong space station. They gave a science lecture 400 kilometers above Earth on Dec. 9, 2021. Millions of students watched it and learned many amazing science facts. Let's take a look at one of them.

The human body grows with the pull of Earth's gravity (重力). But in space, our bones and muscles don't need to support (支撑) our body's weight. This will cause bone and muscle loss (流失). NASA says that astronauts can lose up to 20 percent of their muscles after just a couple of weeks. That is dangerous for astronauts because they will be too weak to work.

Astronauts have different ways to prevent (预防) this. During the lecture, Zhai introduced a special uniform Ye was wearing. It's called a "penguin suit". There are many elastic bands inside the suit. Wearing it, astronauts use their muscles to stretch (拉伸) the bands. This keeps their muscles strong.

Wang also showed students how she walked on a treadmill (跑步机) and rode a bicycle. Astronauts exercise with these tools every day to prevent muscle loss.

Bill likes drinking and he always gets drunk (喝醉的). One winter morning, he goes to a bar and drinks a lot. When he leaves the bar, he is drunk again.

After getting home, Bill thinks he can still do something else to kill the time. So he goes out with his fishing gear (渔具).

Soon, he finds a big area of ice. "That's the place I'm looking for! There must be lots of fish under the ice!" Bill gets very happy.

He walks into the center of the ice, and begins to chisel (凿) a fishing hole. Just then, a loud voice comes out of the sky.

"You will find no fish under the ice," the voice says.

Bill is kind of scared. He looks around, but sees no one. So he starts chiseling again. Once more, the voice speaks, "As I said, there are no fish under the ice."

Bill looks around again, but he still can't see anyone. He then picks up the ice chisel. But just before he could start, the angry voice comes again!

"There are no fish here. Go away, you drunk!"

Bill is very surprised, so he asks the voice, "How do you know there are no fish? Are you a fairy (精灵) under the ice?"
