(B)

It is reported that some developed countries have shipped broken parts of computers to China. Such a thing can be found every day although it is against international laws. Last month Hong Kong officers found 131,000 kilograms of broken computers, TVs and phones sent from Japan.

Things like these are called electronic waste, or e-waste. Dealing with e-waste is not an easy job because dangerous poisons (毒) like mercury (汞) and lead (铅) can be found in them. Every time an old computer breaks down, it needs to be dealt with safely. But at present, broken computer parts are usually buried. It may be hundreds of years before they are really gone in the earth.

Many places in China are polluted by e-waste. Guiyu in Guangdong Province is one of them. This town is named as "the e-waste capital of the world". It has to deal with 1.5 million kilograms of e-waste each year, from which it makes 75 million yuan. But it comes at a cost. Many of the poisons in e-waste find their way into the environment.

Plastic is burned outdoors and chemical water is poured into rivers. Greenpeace, an environmental group, has found the air, the earth and the rivers in Guiyu badly polluted.

The Chinese government wants the country to develop, but in a way that doesn't do harm to the environment and people's life. This year, China presents a new protection law, the strictest one we have ever had. Computer companies like Lenovo and Dell will be asked to take back their old computers. This is because the companies that make computers know best how to deal with them safely. Hopefully, the problem with e-waste will be solved in the near future.

Time is fair to everyone. There are twenty-four hours 66 day. All the people, poor or rich, old or young, have the 67 time every day. I don't know if twenty-four hours a day is enough for everyone. I find that many people are 68 with their work and they keep on working until midnight every day. Here are several possible 69 for this.

One 70 the reasons may be the heavy workload (工作量), and another reason is probably caused by bad planning. They are not in the habit of writing down the work that they are going to do. So why not take out a piece of paper and 71 a plan?

First, write down the time you will start and finish the work. 72, make a list of things you need to do. They may be from 73 up in the morning to going to bed at night. Put all the activities in the right order. Third, you'd better do your work before dinner. And then make time to have a rest between the heavy jobs. At last, please use different color pens to mark the 74 important things you have to do, so that you won't forget to do them. You should plan everything by 75. Time is flying. Let's make good use of time.

The winner of the 2018 World Cup was France. But many people thought the true winner was actually Iceland, the team from the small and cold country in the northern Europe. The spirits of the Iceland team and their excellent soccer skills helped to win a great deal of popularity around the world when they drew Argentina (阿根廷) in 1-1. It meant that Iceland could compete with the second prize winner from the last World Cup. It was unbelievable when the Iceland goalkeeper successfully kept Messi's penalty kick (点球) out of the soccer gate.

After the match, people found some information about the Iceland soccer team on the Internet and they became more interested in how the team overcame difficulties and threw all of themselves into soccer training.

Most of the team members are not full-time soccer players. Some are directors, cooks, workers, dentists and so on. What's more, they are not able to get proper training all year round. They can only practice for a few months each year because the weather is very cold in the country.

No matter how difficult it is, the team members never stop fighting and they become one of the most shining black horses in the 2018 World Cup.

76. Which country did many people think was the true winner of the 2018 World Cup?

77. Who kept Messi's penalty kick out of the soccer gate?

78. Where did people find some information about the Iceland soccer team?

79. What are some of the Iceland team members' jobs?

80. Why can Iceland team members only practice for a few months each year?
