	A Japanese company made this football-shaped house in 2006. It has 32 sides and four legs and can sit on top of the water. It's small but has big windows, so there is enough light available for people who live in it.
	It's in Mexico. The walls and the roof (屋顶) of the house are a part of a big rock. The house was built over 30 years ago. We can't see inside, but it looks quite cool and peaceful.
	In 1968, a group of swimmers first had the idea to build this small house on a rock in the middle of the River Drina in Serbia. It's small and hard to get there. The house is cold in winter, so people live in it mostly in summer.

She gave a speech at City Hall, in Atlanta, America with Bria Brown. They said the crossing was not only bad for students. It also does harm to the earth.

Nora and Bria went on to set up Atlanta Students Advocating for Pedestrians (ASAP). One of the group's goals is to help the earth and the community by making it easier to travel by bike. In 2019, the organization received an award (奖项) from the Atlanta Bicycle Coalition.

Nora, 17, explains that every gallon (加仑) of gasoline produces about 20 pounds of CO₂. It's bad for all living things in the world. It also leads to global warming (全球变暖).
