A man invited his friends to come over for dinner. After dinner, the man wanted to give one of his friends a ride home, but the friend said that he was able to get home by himself, and a nice walk after a big dinner was just the thing that he really needed. So, the man lit up a lantern and gave it to the friend. However, the friend got angry, dropped the lantern and said, "Don't you know that I can see nothing even with bright lights? Are you making fun of me by doing this?" "My dearest friend," said the man as he picked up the lantern from the ground, "I give you the lantern because I care about you. You can't see, but others can. With the lantern, you don't need to worry about being hit by cars or knocked by other people while you're walking in a dark place." After a quiet moment, the friend finally opened his mouth and said, "I'm sorry. Could you pass me the lantern again, please?"

Subject: You Are Invited!

Hello, Sandra's dearest friends,

June 2nd is Sandra's 25th birthday. Sandra has been our best friend for a long time. For this wonderful friend, I plan to have a different party to celebrate her special day. We all know that Sandra is a big fan of Detective(侦探) Conan, so the party is named Who Took Away the Ring.

Everyone that is coming to the party will be given a role and the role's script(剧本). So, if you decide to join us, you will have to prepare a costume for your role. For example, if you play a waitress, you'll have to dress up as a waitress to the party and then talk to the other people playing roles according to the script. During the party, you'll join us in finding out who took away the queen's ring.

The party will be held at Jade Hotel at 7 p. m. on June 2nd. Lots of delicious foods and drinks will be prepared, so there's no need to worry about getting hungry or thirsty. Please tell us if you'd like to join the party before-the end of this month.

Best wishes,

Vincent Lee

I don't know what's wrong with my brain. My memory started to become shockingly complete in 1974, when I was eight years old. From 1980 on, it has been near perfect. Give me a date from that year forward, and I can immediately tell you what day of the week it was, what I did on that day, and what happened on that day.

I can recall memories at will. But my remembering, in fact, is not under my control. My memories automatically (自动地) flash forward and backward in my head through the years of my life. What does it feel like? Well, just imagine this: Someone started to make videos of you when you were a child, and has been continuously following you around all day, every day. This person has placed all of these videos onto a single DV D, and you are being forced to watch it over and over again. There you are as a ten-year-old in your living room watching your favorite TV. program. Then, suddenly, you're on the beach during a family vacation when you were twelve. I never know what I might remember next.

As I grew up, a great many new memories were being stored in my brain, with more and more of them endlessly flashing through my mind. I became a prisoner to my own memory. My mother would tell me not to care so much about the past. I'd try to explain that I didn't really care about the past. The memories just flooded my mind. But nobody could understand me.

My greatest hope now is that scientists will discover something about my brain in the near future. I hope their findings will help them learn more about the human mind.

56. The writer's special ability became almost perfect when she was _____ years old.

- A.8 B.10 C.12 D.14

57. We can learn from the text that the writer _____.

- A. cannot tell one person from another
B. cannot remember anything about the past.
C. can say what will happen in the near future
D. can recall what exactly happened on each past day

58. How did the writer feel about her special ability?

- A. Proud. B. Warm. C. Painful. D. Shameful.

59. The writer's mother _____.

- A. knew what was wrong with her brain
B. couldn't understand her problem
C. cared little about the past
D. solved her problem

60. The writer now hopes scientists will _____.

- A. discover her amazing ability
B. help her become a normal person
C. explain the mystery and control her memories
D. research her brain to learn more about the human mind

D

The first day, the first hug, the first time you got ditched(被抛弃) by a friend. The first time you were given real responsibilities. The first moment you realized you were growing up, changing, and becoming who you really are. These are the things that middle school is all about, and trust us—we know middle school. We've been reading your stories and living through your best moments, as well as your worst nightmares.

Middle school wasn't too long ago for us, and it's still fresh in our minds. It can be a painful awkward time in your life, but the lessons you learn are invaluable in your growing up. That's why we are glad we could give you this book—one of the Chicken' Soup Series. Think of it like a guidebook. Kids just like you are narrating the rocky journey, sharing with you some of the best and worst moments of their life, then allowing you to make your way and experience them on your own.

Thanks to you, we've got to relive(重温) a lot of this stuff. We sat in our office, giggling(咯咯地笑) about the stupid things we wore when we were trying to fit in. We couldn't believe what we did to be popular, but we were also proud of ourselves for the times we stood up for what we believed in. And when you look back, that's what you'll do too later. You'll feel proud that you struggled through middle school and grew up strong. One day, when your braces(牙套) are off and your hair stops getting out of control, you'll laugh, too. Because middle school is, above all, funny.

And don't worry—we already think you're pretty cool.

61. The first paragraph is written to_____.

- A. make teenagers feel understood
- B. ask teenagers to take their responsibilities
- C. share some first experiences in middle school
- D. encourage teenagers to become who they really are

62. Which of the following is the cover of the underlined “this book”?

63. The second paragraph wants to tell the readers_____.

- A. why this book is worth reading
- B. why life is a hard journey to everyone
- C. why middle school should be taken seriously
- D. why chicken soup plays a role in teenagers' growth

64. Who are the “we” in the text?

- A. Unhappy teenagers.
- B. Struggling adults.
- C. Editors of the book.
- D. Guides on the journey.

65. What does the text mainly talk about?

- A. Teenagers should write down their stories to share with others.
- B. Trying to fit in is stupid; we should always be true to ourselves.
- C. There is good and bad when we grow up; every part of it is valuable.
- D. You're cool and special, so believe in yourself and you'll succeed in the end.

第二节 阅读下面短文，从短文后所给的五个选项中选出能填入短文空白处的最佳选项，使短文通顺、连贯，意思完整。(共 5 小题；每小题 1 分，满分 5 分)

Whether or not kids should get paid to do chores(家务活) has long been debated. Some parents think hard work deserves(值得) some money. Others believe chores mean being an active member of the family, not a payday.

►Kerry Flatley

I have a 9-year-old son and an 11-year-old daughter. 66 This weekly payment, however, has nothing to do with their chores.

Doing chores is part of being a helpful member. 67 If kids decide the payment isn't worth the effort of doing chores, what will happen? Parents can only let their kids stop doing chores or increase the amount of payment. That will be terrible.

►John Crohn

68 I want to tell my kids that helping other people isn't always tied to money!

►Shirley Pierce

My kids are still too young to do many chores. Once they are old enough, however, I plan to pay them for doing chores.

69 Doing “personal chores,” like making their own beds, won’t get paid. “Basic chores,” like doing the dishes, will result in a small “salary.” And they will be given a bit more money for “special chores,” like watering the plants and feeding the pet dogs.

►Grace Murset

70 In the real world, work is always tied to money. I think we should prepare our kids for the real world.

- A. I agree with Flatley.
- B. So, I will never pay my kids to do chores.
- C. In my opinion, kids should get paid for doing chores.
- D. They both receive pocket money.
- E. But I'll divide their chores into three types.

V.情景交际（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

VII. 短文填空 (共 10 小题; 每小题 1 分, 满分 10 分)

阅读下面短文, 根据语境、音标或所给单词的提示, 在每个空格内填入一个恰当的词, 要求所填的词意义准确、形式正确, 使短文意思完整、行文连贯。

If you do not live by the sea, you may not think a lot about oceans during your 81 /'deɪ li/ life. But World Oceans Day, which falls on June 8 every year, is a good time to think about 82 amazing and important oceans are.

The world's oceans cover nearly three 83 (four) of the Earth's surface. They are a great source of food for people around the world. Many people make a living by 84 (catch) fish. There are also a lot of people who sell or cook seafood to support 85 (they) life.

The ocean is necessary for the health of our planet. Oceans absorb(吸收) much of the heat that reaches the earth from the sun. This makes the 86 /'temprətʃ ə(r)/ on the earth not too high.

Over half the oxygen that animals breathe 87 (come) from small oceanic plants called phytoplankton. These plants also absorb large amounts of CO₂. They are also a key source of food-for a lot of sea animals.

Today, many dangers threaten (威胁) the health of oceans. Plastic pollution is one 88 the-problems. Many plastic products that people throw away often reach the ocean. Many animals mistake plastic waste for their 89 and eat it. This can cause death of these animals.

But it doesn't have to be this way, does it? Thus, we hope you can spend some time thinking about what you can do to 90 /prə'tekt/ oceans on this special day, and you may find you can do your part.

Dear Kelly,

How are you these days? I'm writing to share a video of Su Yiming with you. Do you know him?

Su was born in Jilin Province on February 18th, 2004. He started to learn snowboarding when he was 4. In 2022, he won a gold medal in Men's Snowboard Big Air at the Beijing Winter Olympic Games.

I thought Su gained success because he was talented until recently I saw the video about his practicing snowboarding in his community. Now I've got to know him better and come to realize that only through hard work can we achieve our dream.

Do you agree with me?

Yours,
Kang kang
