In July, China introduced the “double reduction (双减)” policy. It hopes to reduce schoolwork burden(负担)on primary and junior high school students. The policy calls for reducing homework and after-school classes. According to the policy, children below the third grade will not have homework anymore. It should take no more than 90 minutes for junior high school students to finish their homework. After-school training institutions(校外培训机构)are not allowed to offer extra education courses or advanced(超前的)teaching on weekends, holidays or during winter and summer vacations. One month has passed since the new semester(学期) began. How do students feel about this new policy?

“Our homework is clearly less than before,” said 13-year-old Shen Yuzhe from Beijing. “We are not encouraged to buy workbooks anymore. The exercises are mainly from the textbook.”

According to Shen, students have enough time to process(处理) new knowledge now. “Our teachers are also giving us more chances to do experiments and learn from real life,” said Shen. “For example, we went to research earthworms(蚯蚓)in a field during a biology class. This is a much better way to learn things than just hitting the books.”

For 13-year-old Zhang Hangming from Tianjin, the best thing about “double reduction” is the increased time in after-school activities. “We can now spend more time taking part in clubs and activities, such as dancing, volleyball and drama (戏剧) . I have joined a group called “leadership development” (领导力发展) where I can learn all kinds of skills beyond schoolwork,” said Zhang.

Both Shen and Zhang find there are fewer exams now. But they think it’s not necessarily a good thing. “Exams push me to study harder. Each exam shows my progress as well as my weak points,” Zhang said.

Shen also pointed out that when burden is lightened, self-discipline(自律) becomes the key. “Some students now spend more time having fun when homework is finished early. But if you use all the free time to relax, you might fall behind other students,” he said. “

61. The “double reduction(双减)” policy aims to _____.
A. make vacations longer for students B. reduce students’ schoolwork burden
C. reduce the pressure put on teachers D. help students become more competitive
62. Which of the following is TRUE about the policy?
A. All after-school training institutions are asked to close.
B. Junior high schools should reduce their homework.
C. Homework is not allowed for primary students
D. After-school training institutions should offer advanced teaching.
63. According to the “double reduction(双减)” policy, what kind of after-school classes CANNOT students take during vacations?
A. Sports. B. Computer programming. C. Public speaking. D. Math.
64. Which of the following is NOT true about Shen Yuzhe and Zhang Hangming?
A. They have less homework and fewer exams now.
B. They can spend more time in after-school activities.
C. They think the best thing is to have fewer exams now.
D. They have more chances to learn knowledge from real life.

65. What do Shen and Zhang mainly want to tell us in the last two paragraphs?
A. Exams aren’t necessary because they only show students’ weak points.
B. Students should use all the free time to relax.
C. Students should learn to be self-discipline.
D. Students should spend more time having fun after finishing homework.

If he planted the tree in one of his fields, his neighbors would come at night and steal the apples. If he planted the tree near his house, his children would take the apples. Finally he planted the tree in his wood. Nobody could see it, but there was no sunlight in his wood, the tree soon died. Later, the friend asked the farmer why he planted the tree in such a poor place. “What’s the difference?” the farmer said angrily. “If I plant the tree near the road, strangers may steal the apples. If I plant the tree in one of my fields, my neighbors may come at night and steal the apples. If I plant the tree near my house, my children may take the apples.”
