B

Friday, 28 June

Today my father and I were waiting for the ferry(渡轮) when suddenly we heard a big argument. Two women tourists and a young man were shouting at each other. The man held out a bag, and showed everyone that it was empty.

The crowd stared at the three people. No one knew what was happening.

My father moved through the crowd and said quietly to one of the women, "What's going on?"

“They stole my friend’s purse(钱包),” said the woman. “We were in the bookshop, buying postcards. Three young men began talking to us. Suddenly my friend noticed that her purse was gone. Two of the men ran away. We followed this man here.”

Then the gates opened. The man hurried aboard, and the two women tourists went after him.

“Wait,” said my father. “Let’s take the next ferry.”

This was strange. Was my father afraid of that man? I saw him take his mobile phone out of his pocket and dialled 110.

“I want to report a theft. The man is on No. 3 Ferry now. It just left a few minutes ago. Please meet the ferry.” He gave some more description at the same time.

We took the next ferry. As we got off, we saw the two women tourists and four policemen standing around the man and he looked worried.

“Well done, Dad,” I said as we walked by. My father just smiled.

30. Who probably had the purse according to the text?

- |                                |                                  |

C

When you build a house, you use a blueprint. What’s a blueprint? In general, a blueprint is a drawing that shows how to put a house together with many different parts. DNA is the blueprint of life.

But building a living thing is very complex. It takes millions of years for nature to change the DNA in living things to make them fit the world they live in.

How tall are you? What colour are your eyes? What size are your feet? All these things are strongly influenced by your DNA before you are born! DNA is fantastic!

- Except for some twins, every living thing has its own DNA.
- Some health problems can be caused by problems in your DNA. Scientists can look for these problems and, sometimes, help you before you become sick. In the future, scientists might be able to change your DNA.
- There are copies of your DNA in every part of your body. For example, your finger has the same DNA as your hair.
- You have your own DNA, but it repeats patterns from your parents' DNA. From your DNA, scientists can identify not only you, but also people who are related to you. Your parents and grandparents are related to you, and you have their DNA. When you have a grandson or granddaughter, he or she will have your DNA.

This is the shape of DNA. Do you think it's magic?

Your DNA has billions of instructions that explain why you are the way you are. It's one of the most amazing things on the earth!

34. What does the underlined word "complex" mean?

- |                       |                    |
|-----------------------|--------------------|
| A. important          | B. successful      |
| C. hard to understand | D. easy to believe |

35. DNA can influence your _____.

- |           |           |               |                  |
|-----------|-----------|---------------|------------------|
| a. height | b. weight | c. future job | d. color of eyes |
| A. ab     | B. ad     | C. bc         | D. cd            |

36. What can we learn about DNA?

- A. Each person has their own DNA.
- B. Each person has their grandparents' DNA.
- C. A person's finger and hair has a different DNA.
- D. A person's DNA is changeable in his or her life.

37. The text is most probably from _____.

- |                   |                     |
|-------------------|---------------------|
| A. a medical plan | B. a health report  |
| C. a news website | D. a research paper |
