Do you know which social app Chinese young people use a lot now? “Short videos” are certainly the most popular. Some use Tik Tok and Kuaishou. They think it is fun to share short videos about their lives, while others have other purposes as well.

A 12-year-old user called Elsa has about 2.7 million fans on Tik Tok. The girl has shared videos about her dancing studies since last July. One of the videos won her about one million fans. “I feel really glad to share happiness with people by short videos,” said Elsa.

As some videos are about the latest news, a group of users depend on them to get information. To some other users, they have a different purpose. “Because I can’t spend many hours watching a whole video and I’m not a very patient person. I don’t like waiting for a program to the end. I prefer to watch short videos of wonderful parts in program.” said Wang Zhihao.

However, some young Chinese feel bored with some short videos. “Killing time is the main reason for me to watch the short videos, but many are almost the same, so I think it is a waste of time. What’s more, I really don’t like the videos which show odd, even dangerous things,” said Wen Nan, another college student.

Recently, something else has happened. Some videos are telling people what products are worth buying.

Orienteering (定向越野赛跑) is a sport which began in Europe in 1918. It is very popular in Scandinavia (斯堪的纳维亚). In Sweden, a five-day orienteering event attracts over 15,000 orienteers every year.

To orient yourself means to work out where you are. In orienteering, people run or walk around a course, using a compass and a map to find their way.

Another name for orienteering is “cunning (灵巧的) running”, because you must think about the best way to go. Which route should you choose? Should you run down the long track(小路) or climb over the bit hill?

How do you do it?

Runners use a compass and a map to find red and white markers in the bush. The markers are called controls. Each runner chooses a course. There are simple courses for beginners. There are harder courses for runners or walkers who have done orienteering before. And there are the hardest courses for the best runners.

Who does it?

Orienteering is popular with people of all ages, in many parts of the world. Orienteering began in Australia in 1969. In 1985, the world championships were held in the country. This was my grandmother's first birthday without my grandfather. We had promised her that we would make it her best birthday ever. She expected her birthday party every day since it was also a time for family reunion(团聚).

When my mom, my dad, three sisters and I arrived at her little house, we found she had waited up all night for our arrival. When our arriving, we set to prepare for the birthday celebration at once. We ordered a large three-layer birthday cake and decorated the house with colorful belts and balloons. When everything was ready, I noticed something was missing.

"Where is your scarf?" I asked my grandmother.

That scarf that faded (褪色) was a necessary thing of the yearly celebration. My grandfather gave it to my grandmother forty years ago on their first date(约会). But now, on her first birthday without him, the scarf was gone, too.

"It must be somewhere," she said. "Your grandfather always packed everything so carefully."

Then we started to search every corner for the missing scarf. As we emptied box after box and found no scarf, my grandmother's eyes were filled with tears. However, seeing our worried looks, she soon hid her disappointment.

"Check it out! This may be a gift from Grandpa!" my sister shouted as she found a well-wrapped box.

My grandmother shakily opened the box. With great joy, she pulled out a brand-new red scarf with a note. Her voice trembled (震颤) as she read it aloud: "Dear, I noticed some tiny holes in your scarf when I washed it, so I thought it was time for a new one. I hope it can bring you as much joy as the first one did. Happy birthday!

Love, Bryant."

Finally, my grandmother blew out the candles in her new scarf, as if my grandfather were still with her. It also brought my grandfather home in each of our hearts and made our party much happier with our best celebration ever.
