Tests can be stressful. You worry that you haven't studied enough. You worry that you won't know the right answer. You worry that you do know the answer but will still get it wrong on the test. Don't worry! You're not alone! Tests have been stressing people out for thousands of years.

Here's one man's story about test stress. During the Tang Dynasty there lived a man named Meng Jiao. Meng Jiao loved poetry when he was very young. He loved studying it. He loved writing it as well. He gave all of his life to the art. His hard work showed. It helped him become a talented poet.

Writing poetry was not a good paying job at that time. When he got older, he realized this had to change. He needed to earn more money. He decided to take the imperial competitive exams (科举考试). The imperial competitive exams was the official test system of China. The exams were open for anyone to take. Anyone from a farmer to a scholar could take an exam. The imperial competitive exams gave everyone an opportunity. Whoever passed it could get the job of an official.

Meng Jiao studied hard for the tests. He took them several times. Each time, he failed. But Meng Jiao never gave up. He studied harder and harder. He took the tests over and over and over again. Finally, when he was 46 years old, Meng Jiao passed the test. Meng Jiao put on new clothes. He tied on red flowers to celebrate. Then he rode on a horse through Chang'an City. During his ride, Meng Jiao wrote a poem, "Horseback riding swiftly through the spring breeze, while seeing all the sights and flowers of Chang'an in one day." Meng Jiao's poem tells about his feelings on that exciting day. The poem was passed down through the years. It became famous.

C

I Remember

Looking back at these past three years

I remember many things

Tying to be on time for morning readings

39 when the lunch bell rings

Preparing for art festivals

And making a great big mess

Have fun at New Year's parties

Wishing everyone the best

I remember the excitement
Of the school sports day each year
The many long hours of training
Pride of overcoming fear
I remember starting day one
The shyest in my whole class
Never speaking to anyone
And thinking I would not pass
Then slowly I made some new friends
To remember forever
Helping each other with homework
Getting better together

We have learned a different language
That is from a foreign land
English brings many challenges
We work hard to understand
And now it's time to graduate
We will leave our lovely school
I can't believe it has been three years
I'm trying to keep my cool
But it's difficult not to cry
I'll miss the school trees and flowers
And our kind and caring teachers
Wonderful memories of ours

I am Jim Hawkins and my story begins many years ago, when my father worked at the Admiral Benbow inn.

One day a tall man with a scar (伤疤) on his face arrived. He opened the door of the inn, singing the song I know so well:

"Fifteen men on the dead man's chest—Yo - ho - ho, and a bottle of rum!"

"A glass of rum," he said when he came inside.

"This is a pleasant inn." he said. "Do you have many customers?"

"Not many," my father answered. "Well, this is the place for me. You can call me 'captain'," he said. Then he asked a man to carry his large sailor's chest to his room.

"I'm a simple man," he told my father. "Rum and bacon and eggs is all I want. Here are four gold coins to start. Tell me when I have to pay more."

During the day he went to the cliffs (悬崖) with his telescope and in the evening he sat by the fire drinking rum and water. He asked about sailors every day. We soon understood that he wanted to keep away from them. When a sailor visited the inn, the captain was always very quiet. One day he asked me, "If you see a sailor with one leg, tell me as soon as he arrives."

When the captain drank too much rum, he sang sea songs and told the other customers terrible stories about his life at sea.

He stayed month after month, but he didn't give my father any more money. My poor father was too frightened to ask. Everyone was frightened of the captain and his stories. The only person who was not afraid of him was the local doctor and magistrate, Dr. Livesey.

If you keep drinking rum like that, you will very soon be dead," he warned the captain.

John: I wouldn't mind that!

Kate: Very funny. Later I found out French people are supposed to kiss when they see each other.

B) 阅读短文,按要求回答问题。

How important is music? When they are asked this question, some students and parents usually answer that music is nice, but not very important. It is often considered only as entertainment, but not the first choice for education. This opinion is shortsighted. In fact, music education is necessary and important for all students.

67. Music shows the creators' thinking and values, as well as the social environment it came from. For example, just as Mozart music represents a lifestyle, rock music represents a lifestyle too. The jazz influence that George Gershwin and other musicians introduced into their music is obviously American because it came from American musical traditions.

Music gives a kind of ability to know the world in a different way. Science explains how the sun rises and sets. Music tells the emotive(情感) meanings. We need every possible way to discover and respond to our world because no one way can get it all.

Music is a form of thought, as powerful as science. it is a way we human beings "talk" to each other. Through the language we express our feelings, our discoveries, our ideas, our imagination and our hopes so that they can be shared with others. When we do not let our children receive good music education, we keep them away from the meanings that music expresses. Science does not tell us what it means to be human. Music does.

So music education is much more necessary than people generally realize.

根据短文内容,回答下面5个问题,每个问题答案不超过7个词。

66. What do some students and parents think of music education?

67. Which sentence is the most suitable for the blank?

A. Music is only a lifestyle
