二、完形填空 (本题共 10 分, 每小题 1 分)

At my primary school, I was one of the smartest kids there. I never studied, but 21 got perfect scores. I thought I was born clever. 22 I believed so. I was also a great talent in music according to myself. I could sing better than almost 23 else in my school. I was pretty sure that when I got to the sixth grade, everyone would be surprised by me.

But actually, they weren't.

When I arrived at my new class, I couldn't wait to show everyone 24 I could do. However, there was always someone else who could do them better. More talented girls often sang solo (独唱). I believed I wasn't 25. I believed I wasn't talented. I believed I was a failure (失败者).

Over the next two years, I had to work very hard. Every prize for the singing 26 was given to me for hard work and effort. Grades were still very low but improving little by little. I worked really hard. 27, I was never the best at everything in the class.

I haven't realized until recently that I really don't 28 be the best at everything. I was too strict with myself. In fact, when I did badly in a test, my classmates never 29 me.

Once there were two neighbors who lived next to each other. One of them was a teacher and the other was an engineer. Both of them planted the same plants in their gardens.

The teacher was giving a small amount (量) of water to his plants. And he didn't always give a full attention to them, while the other neighbor who was interested in technology gave a lot of water to his plants. He looked after them too well.

One day, a storm started suddenly during the night. The next morning, the engineer was surprised to see that his plants came off from the roots (根). But the teacher's plants were very well.

The engineer went to the teacher and asked, "We both grew the same plants together. I actually looked after my plants better than you did for yours, and even gave them more water. Still, my plants died while yours didn't. How is that possible?"

The teacher smiled and said, "You gave your plants more attention and water, but because of that they didn't need to work themselves for water. You made it easy for them. While I gave them just proper water and let their roots search for more. And their roots went deeper and deeper, which made their position stronger."

Children are like plants. If everything is given to them, they will not understand the hard work it takes to succeed. Teach them how to walk, but let them follow their own way. Sometimes it's best to guide them instead of giving them.

根据短文内容判断正、误。(正确的涂 "A", 错误的涂 "B")

- () 36. The teacher and the engineer were neighbors.
() 37. The teacher was interested in technology and took good care of his plants.
() 38. The engineer's plants died because of a sudden snow storm during the night.
() 39. The teacher thought the engineer gave his plants too much attention and water.
() 40. From the passage, we know children should be guided rather than be given.

(C)

Living on an island might sound wonderful. But what will happen if you leave for a trip and find you can never return? What will happen if your home, and even the land you stand on, disappear forever? For people who are living in the Pacific (太平洋) Islands, this is really possible.

Why? Climate (气候) change. Climate change is causing the sea to rise. That's bad news for Pacific Islands. Young people on the islands are even starting to wonder: Will they be the last humans on the islands?

Of course not if the islanders have anything to do about it. These people are deeply connected to their homelands. The Pacific Islands are made of 11 different countries. Now all these countries are working together. They're joining forces to fight climate change.

Why does climate change bring such huge trouble to this part of the world? Islands have low elevations. So they are among the first places that are influenced by rising sea levels. That's why countries of the Pacific Islands are working together to do their part. But these are small countries, can they make a big difference? They can, because most of the things that people on islands buy are brought by ships. This is very harmful to the environment. After all, ships put out almost 3 percent of the world's carbon (碳) emissions (排放). That makes climate change worse.

The islanders realize the problem. So, in 2019, six countries got together and came up with a plan. They agree to cut carbon emissions from shipping by 40 percent by 2030. And by 2050, they expect zero-carbon shipping.

How will they make it? They plan to use some really cool carbon-free technologies. They'll make use of solar (太阳能) and wind energy.

Sea levels are rising, but hopes aren't going down on the Pacific Islands.

- () 41. The underlined word "elevations" in the fourth paragraph means _____ in Chinese.
A. 树丛 B. 海拔 C. 湿度
- () 42. The countries of the Pacific Islands are working together to do their part because _____.
A. they are influenced by rising sea levels
B. they will be the last humans on the islands
C. most of the things are brought by ships
- () 43. The countries expect zero-carbon shipping by using _____.
A. solar and cloud energy
B. electricity and wind energy
C. solar and wind energy
- () 44. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?
A. There are 11 different countries on the Pacific Islands.
B. The sea level is going up because of climate change.
C. Ships put out almost 40 percent of the world's carbon emissions.
- () 45. The passage is mainly about _____.
A. how some countries are working hard to develop carbon-free technologies
B. how Pacific island countries are working together to fight climate change
C. how Pacific island countries put out so much of the world's carbon emissions
(D)

Music is in every part of our lives. Research suggests music can influence you a lot. Music can change how you feel. 46

First, music makes you relax. Most stores play background music. The longer customers stay in a store, the more possible it will be for them to buy something. 47 If you want to relax at home, try listening to soft music or music produced by your favorite musical instrument.

48 Many recent studies have tried to explain how music and learning go together. Don Campbell, an expert, believes music can make people, even babies, more creative, smarter, healthier and happier. Some experts suggest playing slow music to help you pay attention when you study. It may even help improve your memory.

Third, music is a healer (良药). When you are sick, try listening to soft and relaxing music. 49 Then tell someone how it makes you feel. A group of teenagers who have depression (抑郁症) shared their favorite songs with each other. 50 After talking about it, they said they felt better.

No matter what style of music you like, you can use it to help.

根据短文内容, 将下方框内的句子还原到文中空白处, 使短文内容完整, 通顺 (每个选项只能用一次)。

- A. So stores try to play music that their customers enjoy.
B. Each teenager explained why he or she liked the song.
C. Different kinds of music can influence you in different ways.
D. If you are feeling sad, play the music you like.
E. Second, music helps you to learn.

先阅读 (A)、(B)、(C) 三篇短文, 然后根据题目要求及所给语境完成下列五项任务。

fill, help out, usual, one, children, steal, safe, we

From my father I have learned a lot. And I'm very thankful to him. I remember when I was a 61, my father always got up very early. He was afraid to wake up others, so he quietly put on his clothes and went off to work. To arrive in time to open his tiny store at 8:30, he needed to leave 62 home at 6:30. After all, he had to take a bus and then the subway. The last journey was a long walk through a neighborhood much of which was 63 with the smell of rubbish. I learned: it is very important to work. No excuse.

When I was 12, I would go to my father's store to 64 on weekends. After helping lay out the outside clothing, for the rest of the day, I had to watch to make sure no one 65 anything. When I noticed someone who looked unusual or strange, I would look the person in the eye, smile and say, "May I help you?" 66, that worked, but sometimes, someone would run off with something. The 67 time, I ran after the thief (贼) but my father shouted, "Alex, stop! There is no need to do that." It's true that 68 is more important than money. I keep that in my mind.

(B)

Three days ago, I joined a club called "Passing Help". This group was set up to help somebody out and pass help along. Why did I join it? Let me tell you the reason.

Last Wednesday, my father suddenly fell onto the ground in front of a museum because of a heart problem. There was a bus station opposite the museum. At that time, bus No. 16 was just waiting at the station. The bus driver, Zhang Ping saw my father and told the passengers that he must take my father to the hospital. He expected most or all of the passengers to get off and wait for the next bus. But to his surprise, they all agreed to go with him. Some passengers helped Mr. Zhang to move my father onto the bus. It was 8:50 a.m., the road was busy. Luckily, Mr. Zhang drove fast and safely. At a quarter past nine, they arrived at the hospital. Thanks to Mr. Zhang and the passengers, my father was saved by the doctors in time.

When I saw Mr. Zhang, I wanted to give him some money to thank him, but he didn't accept it. "I only want to do something valuable for somebody. Pass help along," he said.

Lucy Hughes recently graduated from Sussex University in England. She knows how wasteful many products are. Plastic bags, for example, are often used once for a short time, and then thrown away. She made up her mind to challenge herself to create something out of waste instead. She spent some time studying the fishing business, and the things that were thrown away. After some tests, Lucy found that the fish skin (皮) and scales (鳞) seemed like the most probable parts for her product. She tried over 100 different tests before finding something to mix the materials together. She called it "Marina Tex". This product is clear and feels like plastic, but it's stronger than plastic that is the same thickness. Marina Tex is also cheap to make since it's made from fish waste. Most importantly, Marina Tex breaks down (分解) in less than six weeks because it is made of natural materials.

As a creative designer, Lucy is looking forward to moving ahead with her idea. She wants to try to make her product even better.
