During the Tang Dynasty (618–907), Emperor Taizong asked the official Feng Deyi to recommend talented people. However, several months passed, Feng didn't recommend anyone.

"I tried my best, but there are not unusual and well-rounded people at all," Feng said.

"People are like containers. What we need to do is to make good use of their strengths. You should feel ashamed of not noticing talented people. How can you say that there are no talented people in our country?" said the emperor.

In fact, each tool has a special use. A knife is made to cut things while chopsticks are made to pick up food. We can't use a knife as a chopstick. Like a tool, each person has his own strength. Nobody is perfect. We can't expect a person to be good at everything.

With this idea in mind, Emperor Taizong discovered many talented people of different backgrounds. He offered them important jobs, which helped them make the most of their talents. The talented people helped the society develop and created a "golden age".

A good example is Ma Zhou, who grew up in a poor family. Ma gave a lot of useful advice, so Emperor Taizong offered him a job and he rose many times. Ma helped the emperor deal with difficult problems and became a well-known person in history.

30. Why couldn't Feng Deyi find any talented people in Taizong's opinion?

- A. Because there were no talented people then.
B. Because his rules were wrong.
C. Because he was afraid of making mistakes.
D. Because he didn't agree with the emperor.

31. Knives and chopsticks are compared to _____.

- A. positions B. strengths C. tools D. people

32. Ma Zhou is a good example of people who _____.

- A. have no talent but are still useful B. are unusual and perfect
C. know when to take a chance D. show talent in the right place

33. What can we infer from the text?

- A. Talent lies in everyone, but the key is to value and make good use of it.
B. There is no such a thing as a great talent without great willpower.
C. Perfect people should be found to develop the society.
D. Opportunity only comes to those who are prepared.

We feel angry or guilty(内疚的) about the things we did or did not achieve, about the things we cannot have, and many other things. It seems that everyone carries their own bad emotions. But neither guilt nor anger can help us. Over time, they can be heavy weights on our shoulders.

These bad emotions don't do anything good for us at all. So you might ask yourself — is it possible to put down this heavy burden and give yourself a break? It is quite possible. Start by actually looking at your feelings. How do they get inside of us? Why do we carry them for so long instead of putting them down? Can we live without them?

After thinking about our bad emotions, we can find healthy ways to deal with them. Unhealthy behaviors are not the way to do this. They provide no help. Instead, there are better ways to deal with them. One of the best ways is forgiveness(原谅).

Forgiveness is a powerful tool. We should forgive ourselves first. We shouldn't keep bad emotions inside. We must also forgive others who have made us guilty or angry. This is not always easy. But when we learn to forgive ourselves, it becomes easier to forgive others as well.

There is nothing good about carrying years of emotional burdens. By forgiving ourselves and others, we can abandon our burdens and feel better about ourselves. The moment you do this, you will start to feel a lot lighter. Years of heaviness will be magically gone! You'll start to feel like you have more energy and you'll be much happier with your life.

34. What is the first step to remove the burden of bad emotions?
- A. Asking others some questions B. Studying your emotions
C. Trying to live without them D. Finding ways to deal with them
35. What is one way to get away from bad emotions?
- A. Keeping bad emotions inside B. Forgetting the past
C. Forgiving ourselves and others D. Finding good emotions to replace them
36. What does the underlined word "abandon" in the last paragraph mean?
- A. look away B. carry on C. stay with D. give up
37. Which is the best title of the text?
- A. Put down burdens, be happier with life
B. Look at your emotions, be energetic
C. Better communication, more friends
D. Stay with your emotions
