II. 阅读理解（40分）

第一节 阅读下列短文，从下面每小题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将相应的字母编号涂黑。（共 15 小题，每小题 1.5 分）

A

A special pet-care center in Shenzhen has been highly praised by people. It is China's first pet-care center to take care of pets while their masters are in quarantine(隔离)because of COVID-19.

Because of COVID-19's Omicron variants(奥密克戎变种), many people have been taken into quarantine, leaving their pets at home alone. Such a small pet-care center in fact is a big step for love, which shows the city's care for people's needs during pandemic(疫情). It's common that most pet owners see their pets as members of their family. Besides, pets are also people's private things. So, taking good care of pets will show the government's respect both to life and private things of people.

Shenzhen has set a good example. Some pets even received certificates(证书)of "Little heroes against COVID-19". One of these certificates was awarded to Fu Zai, a British short-hair cat. He spent about 20 days at this special pet-care center. The certificate said: "Dear Fu Zai, in view of your excellent performance at the pet center, doing pretty well in eating, walking and other tasks, and successfully fighting against the pandemic, we have decided to award you the title Anti-pandemic Little Hero. This certificate is for you and we hope that you will grow up healthy and happy!"

The high praise on the small pet center in Shenzhen shows people's strong wish to have their pets well cared when they are in quarantine and this wish exactly should be paid attention to by government. Although the care center can only take care less than 300 pets, it's undoubtedly a good start.

11. What do people think of the special pet-care center?

A. Awful	B. Helpful.
C. Beautiful.	D. Harmful.

B

I always carry a Rubik's Cube(魔方) in my backpack and I'm really good at solving it quickly. I usually ask people to try it first. They turn the cube over in their hands, make a few moves and then shyly hand it back—they don't even know where to begin.

That's exactly what it was like for me to learn how to read because I am dyslexic(有阅读障碍的). It's awkward to admit this, I still couldn't always spell my full name correctly when I was ten, in grade four.

Solving the Rubik's Cube has made me realize that sometimes you have to take a few steps backward in order to move forward. When I was in grade five, I had to leave public school and started a new life at a school for students who are dyslexic. I spent the next four years learning how to read, which later allowed me to return to high school with the ability to communicate and to fully express my ideas.

The Rubik's Cube also taught me that to work out something big, it helps to break it down into smaller pieces. I learned that it's important to spend a lot of time thinking, to try to find connections of each part. I believe that there are surprises around the corner.

Like a difficult text or sometimes like life itself, the Rubik's Cube can be a big puzzle. So I carry one in my backpack as a reminder that I can achieve my goals, no matter what difficulty I may face.

16. What does the underlined word "awkward" probably mean?

A. Embarrassing.	B. Necessary.
C. Impossible.	D. Important.
17. What can we learn from in Paragraph 3?
  - A. Practice makes perfect.
  - B. It is never too old to learn.
  - C. Lost time is never found again.
  - D. Take a step back to gain more.
18. How old was the writer when he went to the school for dyslexic students?

A. 10.	B. 11.
C. 14.	D. 15.
19. How does the writer work out something big?
  - A. By dividing it into smaller parts.
  - B. By taking a few steps backward.
  - C. By making connections of each part.
  - D. By spending much time solving the Rubik's Cube.
20. What is the main idea of this passage?
  - A. Life is a big puzzle that can't be solved.
  - B. Special schools are better than public schools.
  - C. Face and solve the difficulties in life actively.
  - D. Always carry a Rubik's Cube in your backpack.

C

Shenzhen is well known for having a lot of different kinds of local birds as well as some visiting birds. Sometimes our city receives special and unexpected animal visitors, such as the lovely green magpie (鸚) from Southeast Asia.

The beautiful green bird, which is 35 cm long, will take anyone's breath away. The green magpie has a very loud call that will catch any wild animal's attention quickly; however, its green color makes the bird quite difficult to be found, as it has perfectly the same color as the vegetation(植被) around it. In fact, this lovely bird has a lot of different color types that go from being totally blue to having a yellow belly(腹部)and a green back.

Green magpies are known for being social birds, usually flying together in a large number. Male and female green magpies also like to build their home together. The female bird will lay up to four eggs each time and it usually lasts three weeks before baby magpies come out of the eggs. These beautiful birds feed on almost any animal they can find and that they can eat, including insects, frogs, and even snakes.

It is quite unbelievable to have these amazing creatures visiting Shenzhen since this kind of bird is not a bird that will always come here. So it is lucky to have them around and enjoy the new visitors to our city. If we continue protecting Shenzhen's green areas, it is very likely that in the near future we may have even more kinds of animals not only passing by, but staying among us forever.

21. What is Shenzhen famous for according to Paragraph 1?

- A. Home to green magpies.
- B. Receiving no animal visitors.
- C. Having both local and visiting birds.
- D. Home to birds from Northeast Asia.

22. Why is it hard to find green magpies?

- A. They are not long enough.
- B. They usually fly in groups.
- C. They spend much time building homes.
- D. They have the same color as plants around.

23. What can we learn from Paragraph 3?

- A. Green magpies don't like eating insects.
- B. The female bird can lay more than four eggs once.
- C. It takes green magpies 21 days to come out of eggs.
- D. Male green magpies build homes and female ones lay eggs.

24. What should we do to attract creatures to Shenzhen?

- A. Build more homes for green magpies.
- B. Allow more green magpies to visit Shenzhen.
- C. Raise more female green magpies to lay eggs.
- D. Continue to protect Shenzhen's natural environment.

25. Which is the best title for the passage?

- A. The green magpies in Shenzhen.
- B. The ways to protect green magpies.
- C. The visiting creatures in Shenzhen.
- D. The differences between magpies.

第二节 请阅读下面的短文, 并从下列方框里的六个句子中选择五个还原到原文中, 使原文的意思完整、连贯。(共5小题, 每小题2分)

- A. Use the internet and your phone responsibly.
- B. Perhaps they can help you think of new ways of doing them.
- C. Try your hardest to get along with your family members.
- D. Keep your closet tidy by hanging up your clothes.
- E. You also have to respect the money they pay for you.
- F. Take time to ask your parents about their youth, their dreams, their favourite memories.

Do you want to have a healthy and close relationship with your parents? Here's some advice from experts.

Do your own housework

Think of the things that your parents is always asking you to do around the house. Think of the housework that are your responsibility. If you don't like doing housework because you find them boring or difficult, ask your parents for tips on how to do them. 26

Keep your room tidy

Messy rooms are a common complaint among parents. Make your bed in the mornings as soon as you're up. 27 Put dirty clothes in the laundry basket. In this way, they show that you can shoulder the responsibility of taking care of what's yours.

28

This is especially important that your parents are the ones paying for your phone bills and the internet connection. You have to show them that you respect the values they teach you. 29 Using the internet and your phone is an advantage, not your right.

Take care of your brothers and sisters

30 It helps to give your parents a peaceful, comfortable and warm environment. Don't bully(欺凌)your younger ones and don't annoy your older ones. Help them with any problem they might be going through. Do fun things together.
