C. buys a cat in the bag                      D. sells the cat in the bag

D

The story was a true one and still moved(使……感动) me deeply. Thirty years ago, I got to know a poor lady named Rose. She had no children and lived by herself. When I went to visit her, I always took Rose some coffee and food. One day, she asked me to have lunch together with her. We walked from my workplace to a little restaurant on David Street.

On the way, I began to worry; I knew she had no money, but if I paid for the lunch, I was afraid that would make(使得) her feel bad. There were many people in the restaurant and all of them were happy. Rose told me to sit and drink coffee by the window. Then she went to work in the kitchen. After about 20 minutes, she came out and sat with me. She just paid for one meal and we started to enjoy the delicious food together.

She told me that the restaurant let people work for a meal(一顿饭) if they had no money. And the restaurant would give people a free(免费的) meal if they could not work. To my surprise, she also told me that the workers there were all volunteers(志愿者).

I still remember the beautiful afternoon. Rose and I had a good time. The weather was warm and bright, and everyone's smile(微笑) was warm and bright, too. I'm still thinking that life cannot be easy to us, but we can still do something for our friends and neighbors.

27. From the reading, we can know that Rose _____.
