Zhurong, China's first Mars rover (火星车), has worked on the Red Planet for a year! By May 5, it had traveled 1,921 meters on Mars, reported China Daily. It has collected useful data (数据) about Martian rocks and weather. It even found evidence of water!

Now, Zhurong will face Martian winter. The lowest temperature can be  $-100^{\circ}\text{C}$  at night. Luckily, Zhurong has a warm "jacket" ---- an aerogel heat shield (气溶胶隔热层). It is very light but is good at keeping things warm. The solar panels (太阳能板) on Zhurong are very large. They can get lots of sunshine and produce energy.

There are many sandstorms (沙尘暴) on Mars, especially in winter. If the sand covers (覆盖) the solar panels, rovers can't work. In 2018, NASA's Opportunity rover stopped working because of this. But Zhurong's solar panels are like lotus (荷花) leaves. They are full of tiny "needles (针)". They make sure that the dirt falls from the panels more easily, just like water falls from lotus leaves.

With these clever designs, Zhurong will continue to work on Mars. Of course, if the weather gets too bad, Zhurong can take a rest until it gets better.

 C. The solar panels can get all the sunshine.
 D. Both the aerogel heat shield and the solar panels can keep Zhurong warm.
63. Why did NASA’s Opportunity rover stop working in 2018?
 A. Because it was winter.
 B. Because the temperature is too low.
 C. Because there were too many sandstorms.
 D. Because the sand covered the solar panels.
64. What does the passage mainly (主要) talk about?
 A. Zhurong----China’s first Mars Rover                      B. Winter in Mars
