Long time ago, there was only one season, Spring. Spring was beautiful and warm. One day, Spring had a baby and named him Summer.

Summer grew bigger and bigger day by day. He was very naughty(淘气的). He liked running about, carrying hot wind with him. Spring was not happy. She said, "My dear, you are too hot. I can't take it. I want to go somewhere(某地)else." Then she flew away.

After sometime, Summer grew big enough and he had a baby girl. The girl's name was Fall. Fall liked yellow leaves very much. She put a lot of leaves on her father. Summer said to her, "It's your turn to be on duty. I want to have a rest." Summer went away.

Fall missed grandmother Spring and father Summer very much. So she looked for them and found them at last. When the three talked happily together, there came a monster(恶魔). The monster had very big and sharp teeth. He wanted to eat them. They had a good fight(打架). Finally, the monster said, "I give up. Can we be friends?" The four had a meeting and decided each of them would be on duty for three months. Now we call the monster Winter.

Humans have many organs(器官), but you can enjoy lots of things because of your ears. Do you know how the ears work?

The ear has three parts: the outer ear, the middle ear and the inner ear(内耳). The outer ear is the part you can see. it collects(收集)sounds around you. The sounds then travel down to the middle ear, the inner ear and then your brain(大脑).

Your ears never stop working, even when you are asleep! In other words, your ears continue(继续) hearing sounds, but you can't hear the sounds just because your brain ignores them.

But ears do more than hear. They help you keep balanced(平衡的), too. In the inner ear, there are organs that are filled with liquid(充满液体)and covered with small hairs. When you move your head, the liquid and hairs move, too. They send messages to your brain about the position of your head.

More surprisingly, ears even help to taste(品尝) food. Of course, you don't really taste food with your ears. But there are nerves(神经)running through the middle ear that connect(连接) the tongue(舌头) to the brain. If something happens to your ears, you might have difficulty telling different tastes.

The ears are very important organs. We should protect (保护)our ears well.

根据材料内容选择最佳答案。
