59. We can probably(可能) read this passage in a _____.
A. storybook B. sports newspaper C. health magazine D. food book

A boy began to study at the best school in town. In the morning, Grandfather took his grandson to the school. When they went into the playground, the children came up.

"What a funny old man," one boy said, making a face.

"Hey, fatty(胖子)," another one shouted.

The children jeered at the two and jumped up and down.

Without saying a word, the old man took his grandson out of that school gate(大门).

"Great! I don't have to go to school!" the boy said.

"You do. But not this one," his grandfather said. "I'll find a new school for you." Grandfather took his grandson back to their house, asked Grandmother to look after(照顾) him, and then went outside to look for(寻找) a school.

Every time he got to a school, the old man went into a playground, and waited for the children to come out at break time. In some schools the children completely ignored(不理睬) the old man, and in others, they made fun of(取笑) him. When they did so, he would run sadly and go home. Finally, he went into the very small playground of a very small school, and stood tiredly against the wall. When class was over, the children got out into the playground.

"Sir, are you all right? Shall I bring you something to drink?" a student asked.

"We have a bench in the playground. Come and sit down," came another student.

Soon a young teacher came out into the playground. The old man greeted him and said, "Finally, I've found the best school for my grandson in town."

60. The grandson felt _____ when his grandfather took him out of the school gate.
