The basketball flew through the air. Dai Jiameng moved her wheelchair (轮椅), shot and scored!

Dai, 27, started to play basketball 13 years ago.

At the age of 4, a terrible accident made Dai lose her left leg. As a child, Dai's favourite activity was watching basketball games on TV. Her favourite star was Dwyane Wade. In 2007, Wade was injured (受伤的) and had a "wheelchair game" in Guangzhou. It was then that Dai got to know that people like her could also play basketball.

Two years later, Dai became a wheelchair basketball player. Then she found it much more difficult than the sport she watched on TV. The players must control their wheelchairs well and train (训练) as hard as they can. Dai and her teammates spent many hours training and got many injuries every day. After such hard work, the national women's wheelchair basketball team won second place in Tokyo last year. Dai was one of the players.

"For me, the sport is far more than winning or losing," Dai says. "It is a great way to get confidence (自信). I hope more people like me can feel good about themselves and make their dreams come true."

31. What did Dai love doing when she was little?

A. Watching basketball games on TV.

B. Playing basketball with her friends.

C. Reading books about Dwyane Wade.

D. Playing in the parks in Guangzhou.

32. When did Dai become a wheelchair basketball player?

A. In 2007.

B. In 2009.

C. In 2012.

D. In 2021.

33. What was the wheelchair basketball training like?

A. Exciting.

B. Easy.

C. Boring.

D. Difficult.

34. What can we infer (推断) about Dai from the passage?

A. She learned basketball from Dwyane Wade.

B. She can control her wheelchair very well.

C. She will help more disabled people learn basketball.

D. She will play basketball in the Paris Olympic Games.

35. In which part of a newspaper can we find the passage?

A. Culture

B. Health

C. People

D. Education

第二节 请阅读全文，并从下列方框里的六个句子中选择五个还原到原文中，使原文的意思完整、连贯。（共5小题，每小题2分）

A. They did not fit (适合) most Chinese people.

B. Tao had to find another way to make a living.

C. Tao spends a lot of time making clothes now.

D. The walls of the room are covered (覆盖) with suits, coats and shirts.

E. At that time, tailors in Shanghai were famous around the world.

F. But the biggest problem was that there were no successors (继承者).

In a small alley (弄堂) in Shanghai, there is a small room of 12 m<sup>2</sup>.

36 Tao Peiqing started to work here in 1997.

Tao arrived in Shanghai in 1990. He was a good tailor (裁缝) and he made clothes for teachers and students. 37 And it was popular to buy fabrics (布) and ask good tailors to make clothes.

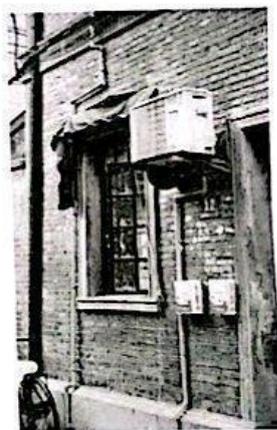

But more and more people began to wear clothes from foreign countries later. 38

Tao found that the size and cuttings of those clothes were made for foreigners.

39 So, altering (修改) clothes became his new way out.

Tao got a lot of orders (订单), and working overtime became normal (正常的) for him. 40

Tao said, "How can young people become great designers (设计师) if they know nothing about making clothes? We should give more chances (机会) to our young designers to not only learn but also practice."
