The weather in England never gets too hot or too cold. There isn't a great difference between summer and winter. Why?

England has a warm winter and cool summer because it is an island country. In winter the sea is warmer than the land. The winds from the sea bring warm air to England. In summer the sea is cooler than the land. The winds from the sea bring cool air to England.

The winds from the west blow over England all the year. They blow from the southwest across from the Atlantic Ocean. They are wet winds. They bring rain to England. England has much rain all the year. The west of England is wetter than the east. The winds must blow across the high land in the west. The east of England is drier than the west.
