When Chinese people talk about Chinese tea culture today, they won't miss an important person in Chinese history--Lu Yu, respected as a "Sage of Tea (茶圣)" for his achievements in the Chinese tea culture. He is best-known for The Classic of Tea, the first work on growing, making and drinking tea.

Lu was born in Jingling in 733 A.D. As a child, he became a student of Zou Fuzi. Thanks to his teacher's guidance, he learnt a lot. He often made tea for his teacher. He also took care of his fellow students' health using his knowledge on tea and herbs (草药).

Lu Yu often went to the countryside to gather tea leaves and herbs. On one of those trips, Lu Yu found a spring. The water was quite clear and clean. When Lu made tea with this spring water, he found the tea tasted better than usual. From then on, he realized the importance of water quality in making tea.

In 752 A. D., Lu Yu finished his studies and returned to Jingling, where he met Cui Guofu. Both men shared the same interests in tea literature (文学) and poetry. They soon became good friends. Since then, the two spent much time travelling.

This period was important to Lu Yu as a man of literature. Cui, with his rich experience and skills in writing, became a coach of Lu. He provided necessary help with Lu's writing. It was during this time that Lu finally wrote the amazing work.

六、读写综合（本大题分为 A、B 两部分，共 25 分）

A. 问答题（共 5 小题，每小题 2 分，共 10 分）阅读下列文章，根据问题进行回答。把答案写在答题卡指定的位置上。

How many times have we told ourselves, "I'm going to study from now on?" or "I'm going to do more English exercises to improve myself next week?" And soon, all our decisions are gone.

Being lazy is the most common thing in the world. It has become the biggest enemy (敌人) in front of us and "giving up" usually happens to us. So how could we beat laziness? The following ways are very useful.

First, set a goal that you can get to. Remember, laziness is powerful. That's because you are used to the way that things are going and even if you want to change, it's difficult. So don't try to conquer(克服) the world in the beginning. Just conquer some small things which you can achieve.

As the saying goes, “Well begun is half done.” Second, take action at once and then you will make progress little by little. Please remember “Actions speak louder than words.” Third, be accountable(有责任心的). It’s common for us to get lazy from time to time, and there’s nothing wrong with that. But to beat laziness, we need a bit of pressure. Pressure can encourage people especially when it’s good. Finally, be confident（信心）and keep doing it no matter what happens. You’ll meet difficulties and fall down. Just get up and keep going. You’ll make mistakes and get disappointed. It doesn’t matter. Learn from your mistakes and keep going. In fact, keep your own promises and get started right now.

76. What is the biggest enemy in front of us?

_____

77. How many pieces of advice does the writer talk about?

_____

78. What should you try to conquer in the beginning?

_____

79. Why do we need a bit of pressure?

_____

80. If you make mistakes, what should you do?

_____
