Are you busy with usual homework during your holidays? Well, that's not the case for all. More teenagers get unusual homework.

 Liu Jun	One of our homework tasks was really strange. We couldn't play on our phones for at least seven days. To be honest, I was really surprised when I heard the news. However, things turned out to be better than I thought. I helped clean the house and did some shopping with my parents. They were also happy and satisfied.
 Yuan Mei	Our teacher asked us to play outdoors and record it in our diary. So I went to visit my grandparents in the countryside. There I saw peanuts(花生), potatoes and so on. I learned how to identify(辨别)them according to the leaves. It was really interesting and meaningful homework.
 Zhou Run	Our unusual homework came from our PE teacher. He asked us to take exercise three times every week and take photos. My father made me play soccer with his friends! I was so slow and weak, and I couldn't even touch the ball. So I practiced almost every day. Weeks later, I could join them and sometimes even score.
 Cao Rui	Learning a skill from our parents was one of our homework tasks. I chose to cook from my mother. After being burned several times, I finally learned how to make fried eggs with tomatoes. The dish tastes delicious. I was so happy about it.

① Whenever you walk past a cafe, you might take interest in the coffee because of its delicious smell. But when you try this dark drink you will regret it, because it tastes like Chinese medicine. Our senses are mismatched because of the "second sense of smell" according to the Telegraph.

② "We have two senses of smell," explained Barry Smith, professor of the University of London. "One is when you breathe(呼吸) in things from the environment, and the other is when the air comes up the nose and is breathed out through the nose.

③ When we drink coffee, for example, the act of swallowing(吞咽) sends the smell up the back of our nose from inside the mouth. This wakes up the second sense of smell in our brain. As a result, it gives us a different feeling.

④In fact, the second sense of smell plays a big part in our eating experience. It may be common sense that we smell through our nose and taste using our tongue(舌头). But the truth is 80% of what we think of as taste actually reaches us through smell. Just hold your nose while eating and you will notice that your tongue can only catch a very small part of the flavor.

⑤However, ▲. Durians(榴莲) and some cheeses are examples. "Think of a piece of cheese with an unpleasant smell," Smith said. "It smells like the inside of a teenager's training shoe. But once it's in your mouth, and you are experiencing the smell through the nose in the other direction, it is delicious.

⑥So far, scientists have only found two flavors that smell the same no matter how they enter the nose--chocolate and lavender.

61. Some good-smelling things taste so bad because _____ .
A. our two senses of smell work differently.
B. different people have different tastes.
C. our sense of taste often lies to us.
62. What's the writer's purpose in writing Paragraph ④?
A. To explain what the second sense of smell is.
B. To show us the importance of the sense of taste.
C. To tell us most of taste actually reaches us through smell.
63. What's the Chinese meaning of the underlined word "flavor" in Paragraph ④.
A. 花朵 B. 味道 C. 面粉
64. Which sentence can be put in the " ▲ " in Paragraph ⑤?
A. the second sense of smell sometimes doesn't work at all
B. people think that most of food with strong smell tastes terrible as well
C. the mismatch between our two senses of smell sometimes has pleasant results
65. Which question is answered in the passage?
A. Why does something that smells good but tastes bad?
B. What is the best way to drink freshly made coffee?
C. How can we change the smell of delicious food?

IX. 任务型读写 (共 5 小题, 每小题 2 分, 满分 10 分)

阅读下面短文, 按要求完成下列各题。

When my son, Mark, was in the third grade, he saved all his pocket money for over three months to buy holiday presents. The third Saturday in December, Mark said he had made his list and had twenty dollars in his pocket.

I drove him to a nearby supermarket. Mark picked up a hand basket and went in while I waited and watched in the car. It took Mark over 45 minutes to choose his presents. Finally he came to the checkout counter (收银台) and reached into his pocket for his money. It was not there! There was a hole in his pocket, but no money. Mark stood there holding his basket, tears falling down his face.

Then a surprising thing happened. A woman came up to Mark and took him in her arms. "You would help me a lot if you let me pay for you," said the woman. "It would be the most wonderful gift you could give me. I only ask that one day you will pass it on. When you grow up, you'll find someone you can help. When you help others, I know you will feel as good about it as I do now."

Mark took the money, dried his tears and ran back to the checkout counter as fast as he could. That year we all enjoyed our gifts almost as much as Mark enjoyed giving them to us.

I would like to say "thank you" to that very kind woman, and tell her that four years later, Mark went house to house collecting blankets (毯子) and clothes for the homeless people in the fire. And I want to promise her that Mark will never forget to keep passing it on.
