Many people love travelling to different countries, but if you plan to go abroad, you should know how to behave in different situations around the world.

Most travelers enjoy meeting new people, but sometimes you can be rude without saying anything. In Russia, you should never shake hands in a doorway, and if you're travelling in Thailand, never touch people's heads or point your feet at people.

In most countries in Europe people expect a lot of eye contact when you talk to them, but in many Asian countries a lot of eye contact seems unfriendly. And in South America people usually stand quite close to each other when they talk, but in countries like the USA you need to give people more personal space. Also, it's rude to interrupt Japanese people while they are talking to you. You must wait until they finish before you start speaking.

When you're travelling in Asia, if someone invites you to his or her home, don't forget to take off your shoes when you arrive. And if you visit an Arab family's home, don't admire anything valuable because your host will feel he should give it to you as a present.

With so much to think about, it's not surprising that many people prefer going on holiday in their own countries --- or you might just decide to stay at home!

- ()19. Which of the following statements is TRUE?
A. We can admire anything valuable in an Arab family's home.
B. In the USA people usually stand quite close to each other when they talk.
C. In Russia, it's impolite to shake hands with people in a doorway.

- ()22. What does the writer want to tell us?
A. Practice makes perfect.
B. Where there is a will, there is a way
C. When in Rome, do as the Romans do.
- ()23. What is the best title for the passage?
